Expansion Drive Starts With Big Meeting

Chamber of Commerce Membership Campaign Opened With Speeches Embodying New Ideas for Developing Kingston Along Lines Suitable for Adding to City's Business and Residential Expansion.

The Expansion Campaign of Kingston's Chamber of Commerce was officially opened Monday evening at the big Get Together dinner held in the new Millard Building on Broadway, and judging from the enthusiasm displayed there is no question but that the campaign which is now in full swing will go over the top. Peppy addresses, spirited music and a general feeling of good fellowship marked the gathering of the men and women around the banqueting boards that had been spread in the handsome new saleroom facing Broadway.

The big room had been artistically decorated for the occasion and an excellent menu was efficiently served by a group of women while throughout the evening Malsenholder's orchestra rendered a selected program and Paul Zucca led the diners in singing the campaign songs, copies of which were found at each plate.

Another feature of the program was the singing of several solos by Harry Lazarus of the Kiwanis Club, who is the possessor of a fine baritone.

The tables were decorated with huge bowls filled with roses while at each plate lay a copy of the booklet describing and illustrating the city.

Every seat was taken as Charles A. Lasher, president of the Chamber of Commerce, called the meeting to order. After the singing of America the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. William J. Nelson, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer.

During the serving of the dinner a flashlight was taken of the diners by Lou Merrill of the Pennington Studio.

Lasher Welcomed Diners.

After the serving of the dinner President Lasher, in a few well chosen words welcomed those present and said it was proof that they were interested in the welfare of Kingston. He then introduced County Judge Joseph M. Fowler, who presided as toastmaster.

Tribute to William Dugan.

Judge Fowler in his opening remarks said there was a strain of sadness mingled with the joyousness of the gathering which had been occasioned by the sudden death of William Dugan, long an active member of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Bill Dugan was a friend of mine," said Judge Fowler, "he was a thorough Kingstonian and always active in all matters pertaining to the advancement of the city." The judge paid an eloquent tribute to the sterling worth of Mr. Dugan and then as the gathering stood with bowed heads he called on the Rev. Dr. Frank B. Seely of the Fair Street Reformed Church who offered a brief prayer in the memory of a man who would be missed.

Judge Fowler introduced Mayor Morris Block as the first speaker of the evening.

Mayor Favors Movement.

Mayor Block, who spoke briefly, said: "When I was visited by a committee from the Chamber of Commerce last Friday and was asked to sign a proclamation setting aside this week as Chamber of Commerce Week in Kingston, it was a pleasure to do so, but the thought came to me that we should make every week in the year a Chamber of Commerce week in so far as lies our duty to Kingston."

"I heartily approve the Expansion Movement the Chamber of Commerce has inaugurated to place the organization in position to function well for the advancement of Kingston for its civic betterment and for its commercial, industrial and agricultural development. It seems, too, that this forward movement is prompted by far-sightedness, for to keep pace with progress of other cities and the development of the Hudson Valley it is vitally necessary to the welfare of Kingston that this should be done."

Four administration authorities realize the value of a live commercial organization in helping to guide the wheels of city government, and following this campaign we shall know that when the Chamber of Commerce speaks it voices the sentiment of the representative men and leaders of Kingston. We welcome this prospect for the future. It will make it easier for us in that we shall approach our undertakings with greater confidence."

"I confidently believe we are entering an era of prosperity for this community and that every man, woman and child of the Kingston district has cause to rejoice because of this fact, and I believe the standard of this era has been prompted by this forward step of the Chamber of Commerce."

"I wish to compliment the directors of the chamber and the men who are so loyally and unselfishly giving their time for the next four days to make the campaign a success, for their vision and their progressive spirit and to say that Kingston is fortunate in possessing such men. "In conclusion, I want to assure you that the Chamber of Commerce can depend upon my cooperation in all constructive measures for the betterment and welfare of Kingston."

Women in Civic Work.

Dr. Mary Gage Day, the next speaker, spoke of the work of the women in the civic life of the community. She said the women have been working for some years on civic problems. Some things have been accomplished and there are still some things that yet have to be done. Women had first found expression for the activities of civic life in the club movement, and that movement has spread until today there is hardly a community of any size where you will not find a woman's club. And where you find such a club you will find them interested in civic affairs.

Dr. Day said that recently there had come to her door literature calling attention to the fact that this ideal of work to be done along civic lines throughout the country. There are a number of brilliant women, she said, who were of the opinion that women could best work alone and for that reason there had been organized a woman's party in this country. Personally she believed that the best work could be accomplished by working with the men.

She said that she was of the opinion that if a woman was a Democrat she should unite with the Democratic party; if a Republican, with the Republican party.

Dr. Day said, that while she was in Honolulu she found many varied classes and groups of people, but when it came to any movement for the betterment of the community they all united in pushing it across. An example of united work was that which had been accomplished there in raising funds for a new "Y" building. They started a campaign of a week to raise $350,000. In three days they had raised $350,000. That showed what united effort could do.

In the islands, said Dr. Day, one of the big crops was the sugar crop, and another crop that they worked successfully was the tourist crop. That was the crop they all united in cultivating successfully. While Kingston did not have a sugar crop, it did have a tourist crop that should be cultivated. In closing she urged all to get together and help uplift and boost Kingston.

Dr. Michael Outlines Activities.

Superintendent Myron J. Michael of the city schools spoke on the significance of the expansion of the Chamber of Commerce. He said that in his remarks he would refer to school matters, but wanted to distinctly understand that in doing so he was speaking as a private citizen and not as one in an official capacity.

What we intend putting over this week, said Dr. Michael, is a larger Chamber of Commerce than ever before in the history of Kingston. The reorganized Chamber of Commerce will be divided somewhat differently than hitherto. It is proposed to divide the organization into five bureaus.

The first would be the agricultural bureau. Without the support of the agricultural region surrounding Kingston we would soon go hungry.

Commerce Are Needed.

"Three years ago," he said, "I drove through a certain section of Ulster county and saw acres upon acres of fruit rotting on the trees because the price was so low that it did not pay to pick the fruit. What an opportunity it seems to me there is to invest some capital in erecting canneries where the surplus fruit in the fall years could be harvested and canned for winter use."

"This is no new thought. It has been tried out successfully in Rochester, Batavia and other cities in the state."

Income From Non-Resident Pupils.

Dr. Michael called attention to the fact that there are 287 pupils attending the schools in Kingston from the agricultural district surrounding Kingston. Of these non-resident pupils, 278 are attending the high school and 189 the elementary schools.

What does that signify? It signifies this, that where the children attend school the trade of their parents is coming. We receive from each non-resident pupil attending the high school $100 per year, or $50 for a half year. The revenue from this source at the high school was $27,800. The non-resident pupils attending the elementary schools pay $45 a year or a total of $4,305, a grand total of $32,105 which is contributed to the school funds by non-resident scholars. We are educating these children for just a little less than it costs us per capita.

Other Bureaus.

The four other bureaus that would be established in the reorganized Chamber of Commerce, he said, would be the commercial bureau,

Pleas of Not Guilty Entered

In All Cases on Sealed Indictments Handed Up by May Grand Jury—Two Civil Cases Marked for Trial.

There were several arraignments in county court Monday afternoon when District Attorney Traver called defendants before the court to answer to various charges who were indicted by the grand jury in attendance at the May term of the Supreme court. The defendants entered pleas of not guilty and in all cases except one supplied bail. No calendar of criminal work had been prepared by District Attorney Traver, who stated to the court that he would be ready to proceed with trials whenever the court was ready. At the present time it is difficult to secure jurors to serve and it is doubtful if there will be much trial work taken up at this time of the county court. There are at present five jail cases before the court for trial and it is likely that these defendants will be given an opportunity to appear in court in order that they may not be held during the summer recess of the courts in jail. In two cases pleas are expected.

Civil Calendar Small.

There were but sixteen cases on the civil calendar. Three of these cases were announced as settled. Three were marked for trial at special term. Two were marked for trial and the others were moved over the term.

An action brought by Harry Elliott against John Carlin, James Camlin and John Ostrander was announced settled. A. D. & A. W. Lent for plaintiff and Brinnier, Canfield & Brinnier for defendants. This action was for damage to property. A second action between the same parties for assault was also announced settled.

An action on account brought by Orville E. Elwyn against Edith A. Reiffert was settled. W. D. & W. D. Brinnier, Jr., for plaintiff and Newton Fessenden for defendant.

New Method to Get Jurors.

Judge Fowler adopted a new method of securing jurors at future terms. When jurors were sworn and presented their excuses to the court and asked to be excused from service at this term, several jurors were found who said they would be able to serve at a later date but that it would be impossible to serve at this term. These men who were willing to serve at some future date were retained and after being excused from service at this term were excused until some future date.

William H. Fairbairn of Hardenbergh was excused until the September term. Edward Irish of Woodstock was excused until September. As were Walter Rhinland of Shawangunk, Harry Skerritt of Hurley and Oscar Sutherland of New Paltz.

John M. Schoemaker of Marlborough, Edward Schoemaker of Plattkill, Harry Snyder of Marlborough, and Sol Van Orden of Gardiner were excused until the January term of county court.

Try Civil Cases Monday.

Nineteen out of the thirty-six jurors were excused by the court from serving at this time. All jurors were excused until Monday morning at 10 o'clock, daylight saving time, when the trial of the two civil actions on the calendar will be taken up. These actions are: Samuel Weisner against Philip Winckler, action for work, labor and services; Cleon B. Murray for plaintiff and William D. Cunningham for defendant; Philip Greidinger against Louis Fisher, action in contract; W. H. Grogan for plaintiff, Cleon B. Murray for defendant.

Defendants Arraigned.

After the civil calendar had been disposed of, the following were arraigned before the court by District Attorney Traver on sealed indictments handed up by the recent grand jury:

Chester McDowell, Richard McDowell and Harold Tice, charged by the grand jury with burglary, third degree, alleged to have been committed on September 3, 1923, and unlawful entry. They entered pleas of not guilty and were released on bail.

Emery Personius, charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, alleged to have been committed in the town of Saugerties on April 14 last. Through his attorney, Thomas F. Coughlin, a plea of not guilty was entered. Bail was supplied.

Nylo Thorne, charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated, alleged to have been committed in the town of Saugerties on April 3 last, also entered a plea of not guilty. F. C. Merritt appeared for him. Bail was furnished.

Alfred Marcolis of Kingston, charged with abduction and rape, second degree, alleged to have been committed in the city of Kingston on April 11, 1923, also pleaded not guilty. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for him and asked for thirty days to make any desired motions. Bail was supplied. Marcolis with one Weinstein are charged with abduction a girl from Newburgh who was attending a dance in town and taking her in their car out the Rosendale road where an alleged assault took place. Samuel Weinstein was arraigned on the same charge and entered a plea of not guilty.

Frederick Barber, charged with burglary, third degree, alleged to have been committed on February 22 last at the city of Kingston, his attorney Frank W. Brooks, Cash bail in the sum of $1,500 had already been deposited.

Adolf Partian, indicted for the same crime, also entered a plea of

Storm Follows in Wake of Heat Causing 11 Deaths

Mid-West Suffers Hottest June 1 While Eight Inch Snowfall Occurs in Wyoming—Massachusetts Has Severe Storm—New York Sweetens.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 2.—Severe electrical storms were sweeping the mid-west today, bringing relief from the first real torrid weather of the season which yesterday claimed victims in a score of cities as thermometers climbed into the nineties.

Four were dead in Chicago proper as a result of the hottest June 1 in history. Yesterday's maximum here was 92.2.

Lightning killed two at Des Moines and seven were killed at Sioux City, Iowa, where more than a dozen homes were demolished, trees uprooted and wire communications paralyzed.

And while the mid-west suffered, it was snowing at Rock Springs, Wyo. There was a fall of eight inches there after several days of unseasonable cold.

85 Mile Wind in Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa, June 2.—Several dead, scores injured, property destruction estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars and a practically unbroken drought in western Iowa, today, marked the paths of a series of violent thunderstorms that swept this state yesterday afternoon.

Peter Brown, farmer and George Stephenson, were killed by lightning in Des Moines.

Forty-two were injured and $250,000 damage was done at Sioux City by an 85 mile wind.

Two were hurt and great property damage done at Waterloo.

Massachusetts Storm Damage.

Boston, June 2.—A gale and rain, following the hottest day of the year, left this damage in its wake today:

Telephone service disrupted and trees uprooted at Greenfield and Amherst.

Limbs of trees crashed through Cambridge windows, then dropped on top of parked automobiles.

Cellars flooded and trees down in Brookline.

Valuable church window blown in at Bourne.

The downpour—an inch of rain fell in ten minutes, with the mercury at 86—aided materially in putting out the fire that caused heavy damage in the John A. Devito Paper Stock Company's building in Roxbury.

One Dead in New York.

New York, June 2.—New York was experiencing another scorching day today with only a slim chance for immediate relief, although cooler weather is promised for Thursday.

Following a day in which the mercury climbed to 88, one man was dead and eight suffering from prostration.

Cleveland Has Three Victims.

Cleveland, O., June 2.—Another day of sweltering heat, followed the hottest June 1 recorded in 54 years in Ohio weather history, faced Cleveland and other parts of the state today. Thunder showers tomorrow were expected to ameliorate the intense heat which has taken three lives in Cleveland and suburbs. The highest mark here yesterday was 91. At Marietta it was 95.

FLIER DERAILED BUT NOBODY IS HURT.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 2.—Sante Fe passenger train No. 405, Northbound Texas-Kansas City flier, was derailed a mile north of the city limits here early today.

Seven coaches turned over. None of the crew or passengers received a scratch, railroad officials declared.

Baggagemen escaped by grabbing overhanging safety rods in the baggage cars, lifting themselves up from the swirling trunks and packages.

A hold-up was planned, railroad authorities announced as a large wrench was found lying beside a joint from which all bolts had been taken out.

Brickyard Workers Quit.

More than 1,000 workers in ten of the largest brickyards in Beacon and vicinity quit working on Monday, protesting a proposed cut in wages. The men had been receiving $2.75 to $4.35 a day and had been informed that this probably would have to be reduced twenty-five cents.

Summer Dances at Sawkill.

A series of dances will be held every Wednesday and Saturday evenings during the summer at St. Ann's Hall at Sawkill.

not guilty. Thomas F. Coughlin appeared for him.

Everett Flinchett, who was arrested in Gloversville by Deputy Sheriff Gaynor, was arraigned on a charge of incest alleged to have been committed on February 20, 1924. He said he had no counsel and no funds with which to get one. Judge Fowler assigned Thomas F. Coughlin. A plea of not guilty was entered.

Court went into recess until Wednesday when additional criminal work will be taken up and it is expected that there will be some cases disposed of at that time without a jury.

Place Children In Institution

Four Children of John Schibelski to be Removed From Family Influence—Judge Schirick Suspends Penitentiary Sentence on John.

Considering that the home influence of the four children of Mr. and Mrs. John Schibelski was all that it should not be, Judge Harry E. Schirick in police court this morning suspended the serving of an Albany penitentiary sentence on the husband provided he stipulated that he would consent to having his four children placed in some institution.

John was arrested several days ago for chasing his wife through Meadow street and the hearing had been adjourned to today. When Judge Schirick informed John of the decision he had reached in the case, John agreed to allow the Ulster county board of charities to take over the four children and proceedings will be taken before County Judge Joseph M. Fowler to assign them to some institution where they will be cared for.

John also agreed to contribute as much as a week as possible to the support of the children and paid over to the judge the sum of $10 for that purpose.

On John's further agreement to behave himself in the future, the judge suspended sentence.

URGES IMPORTANCE OF LOCAL SEALERS' WORK.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Syracuse, June 2.—At the second session of the mayors' conference here this afternoon, Charles J. Reynolds, state director of weights and measures, called the attention of cities and villages to the increasing importance and volume of work of local sealers of weights and measures.

He emphasized the fact that the need for inspection of the hundreds of gasoline pumps has doubled the work of local sealers.

Director Reynolds urged the mayors of those municipalities which have public markets to require their sealers of weights and measures to visit these markets daily and inspect all weights and measures. He also urged that before a license is granted to a huckster or peddler, the licensing official require that all weighing and measuring devices used by the peddler be examined and tested.

SPEEDING SALESMAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Springfield, Mass., June 2.—John Laing, a salesman, residing at 455 Summer avenue, this city, formerly of Yonkers, N. Y., was almost instantly killed and his wife and seven year old daughter seriously injured when their automobile crashed with an express car near Longmeadow.

Mrs. Laing and her daughter were taken to the Mercy Hospital, where it was said they will recover.

The automobile driven by Laing was said to have been going at a high rate of speed.

Laing and his wife and daughter were thrown from their machine, which was carried 300 feet by the express car and completely wrecked.

Incorporation Certificate.

A certificate of incorporation has been granted "N. C. Snyder, Inc.," with principal office of business at 746 Broadway, Kingston, by Frances E. S. Knapp, secretary of the state. Capital stock is $5,000. The purposes of the corporation are to purchase, sell or lease real or personal property. The directors, who are also the shareholders, are: N. C. Snyder, 13 Wilbur avenue; Olive J. Barclay, 102 Albany avenue; Irving Burdick, 208 Downs street. Brinnier & Canfield are attorneys for the incorporators.

Weisowski a Mental Defective.

John Weisowski of this city, a young man who has been in many scrapes for larcenies, and other offenses, and has been in the Elmira Reformatory, after examination Monday by Drs. Louchman and Dudenhausen, was found to be a mental defective. He was committed later by County Judge Joseph M. Fowler to the State Institution for Defective Delinquents at Nanuet, and will be taken there.

Bernard Kuntz Arrested.

Bernard Kuntz of East Strand was arrested on Monday afternoon by Sergeant Phinney on a warrant issued in New York City charging Kuntz with petit larceny. Kuntz furnished bail for his appearance Wednesday morning in New York.

This is not Bernard Kuntz, the clothier, of 15 Broadway, who resides at No. 111 Morris street.

Heat Threatens Cotton Crop.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Atlanta, Ga., June 2.—With the thermometer registering 77 degrees at 7 o'clock this morning, weather bureau forecasts were that the temperature would climb into the nineties during the day.

The cotton crop in the southeastern states is liable to considerable damage unless rain comes within the next few days.

Lost Rapid Horse Dancer.

This evening at its rooms on Hope street, Rapid Horse Company, No. 1, will hold its last dance of the season. The members expect a large attendance to enjoy the last of its social affairs. Music will be furnished by the company's orchestra and refreshments will be on sale.

May Day Celebrated At Kingston High School

Good Reason for Celebrating It on June First, But Festivities Lost No Part of Their Pleasure Thereby—Pageant Presented by Pupils

"There's a Reason," that May Day at the Kingston High School came on the first day of June this year, and a very good and happy one. Just a day or two after being chosen queen, Miss Helen Byrne was taken ill with scarlet fever and the Senior Class decided to wait her recovery. Miss Byrne was fully recovered and ready for the festivity last week when the weather interfered, but all who attended the May Day on the grounds back of the school Monday felt sure that the "third time," won the best day of all.

This ideal spot for such an occasion was never more beautiful with the spring green of foliage mingling with the somber green of the pine trees that crown the rocky eminence against which the queen's throne and court were set. There was a mass of flowers all about the throne which had further decorations of penants and at the entrance to the grounds a floral gateway admitted the May Day procession which was unusually lovely.

The pretty pageant was announced by a long bugle call played on a strange but picturesque horn by Professor Dumm. Then the young ladies who presided so capably at the piano, Miss Genevieve Maines and Miss Ruth Shultis, began the march for the procession which was led by a gay figure riding a white charger (Seymour Goldberg), and followed by class president, Wilbur Tetley.

Then came the Maid of Honor, Otilio Riccobono, in gown of gold color with close cap of white lace and carrying an armful of Ophelia roses. The maids who followed and were quaintly pretty in their gowns of yellow, orange, blue, green and lavender, with lace caps and carrying great May baskets of bright colored flowers. They were, the Misses Helen Shield, Charlotte Gillette, Alberta Davis, Irene Legg, Ruth Byrne, Olivia Dauber, Marion Byrne, Edith Ryer.

The queen with her flock of filmy white, her golden hair and her arms very full of Ophelia roses, was a lovely picture indeed. Her train bearers were the tiny and sweet Gorman twins, Margaret and Rosemary, who were followed by little Dorothy Davis and Billy Byrne, who carried the Queen's scepter of flowers.

Finally there was a long procession of girls in picturesque gowns of flowered prints.

The May-Pole Dance opened the program fittingly. This was followed by the president's address of welcome and a bit of a sketch of history of May Day, after which the Queen was crowned with a wreath of sweet peas and smilax. She graciously greeted her court and subjects.

Then came an appropriate aesthetic dance to the music of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," given gracefully by Miss Elsie Gleason, wearing soft draperies of pastel shades. Another charming dance was that of Pierrot-Bert, Miss Priscilla Davis.

Amidst much cheering and applause the athletes of the school then received a rose from their queen and an honor letter, the coaches coming in for their share of favors. After the distribution of letters came the awarding of the Maroon prizes as follows:

Junior-Senior Short Story; first prize, Mildred Goldberg; second prize, Victor Johnston.

Freshman-Sophomore Short Story; first prize, Vivian Beatty; second prize, Margaret Brown.

Poetry; first prize, Helen Fitzgerald; second prize, Marion Byrnes.

Essay; first prize, Mary Enlist; second prize, Beatrice Dodge.

Humorous Sketch; first prize, Pierson Phelps; second prize, Charles Ellis.

When the applause following the prize distributions ceased, Miss Bernadette Walker in fluffy frock of yellow with white spangled overdress gave a charming and graceful toe dance and was obliged to respond with an encore.

The program closed with a gay and picturesque folk dance given by the eighty girls in flowered gowns, and the recessional of the entire May Day court.

To Miss Tidquist is due the great praise for arranging the dances and other features.

The following were presented with roses in recognition of their work this year:

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

MAGGIE'S WISH

Maggie just hated to waste any time in sleeping. She had so many things she could always do and she never had time to do them all.

A Jelly Little Creature.

She never had time to play all she wanted, nor to read all she wanted to read, nor to talk to her friends, nor to play games and do hundreds of things.

She wished she could skip a night's sleep once in awhile. It was such a waste of time to sleep.

She had tried once going to bed with her clothes on so as to save time and so as to be ready to begin playing at once in the morning.

That hadn't worked out well at all. She had been so uncomfortable and hadn't really saved good playing time in the least.

If only about every two or three days it stayed light at night! That would be a splendid thing. Then she wouldn't feel sleepy, but would feel nice and wide-awake.

Oh, if only that could happen! Maggie wished so hard that it could.

It was beginning to get dark one evening and Maggie was slowly getting ready for bed when Maggie leaned out of her window and said, shaking her fist at the moon:

"There is something about you that makes a person sleepy. You look so merry and yet you make a person feel like going sound asleep and having nice dreams instead of staying awake and doing lots of things."

"Why can't you let the sun shine all night for a change? And just have a real holiday of a couple of days?"

Mr. Moon's face suddenly changed and a wide, wide grin came over it.

Wider than Maggie had ever seen. It was an enormous grin. Mr. Moon's face seemed to become brighter, too, even brighter than ever.

Then a jolly little creature dressed in bright orange satin appeared on Maggie's window-sill.

"You want sunshine," said the jolly little creature, "so come with me."

He offered Maggie his arm, and she put hers in his. She was glad she had put on her pale blue wrapper. It looked quite pretty beside the jolly little creature's orange suit.

"I'm the Sun's messenger," the jolly little creature said. "I'm allowed to wear this bright costume because I'm a bright messenger. All the Sun's messengers are bright because we can't help but pick up bright beams from the sun. He's so bright he just scatters these bright beams about as recklessly as you please."

"How many creatures are bright enough to afford that?"

"I'm coming to ask you to go with me to the other part of the world where the sun shines while you, as a rule, sleep, and where they sleep when you are up and about."

Maggie started off at once with the Sun's messenger.

"It won't matter about my having my nightgown and wrapper on?" she asked.

"No," said the Sun's messenger. "I'll explain how that happened."

Maggie had a beautiful time—just not going to bed at all—while the sun shone steadily.

Then she was whisked back with the Sun's messenger to her own room just as the sun was rising and peeping in her window.

"Dear me," she panted, "dear me. I do wish the sun wouldn't be quite so bright. I'd like a nap now."

But her mother was calling to her to get dressed. Her mother didn't know of her great adventure and so thought she'd be wide awake.

Oh, oh, oh. Maggie was glad when the next evening came and when she could go to bed and sleep. She was glad Mr. Moon looked as though he would be ready to help her sleep and send her merry dreams.

"I wonder," she said, as she waved a good-night to the Moon, "if the reason we all feel so sleepy in the morning anyway is because we have at least taken a little trip with the Sun in our wishes?"

"But I'll never ask for an adventure such as I had last night when I went where the sun was. Goodness, I don't see how the sun stands such hours!"

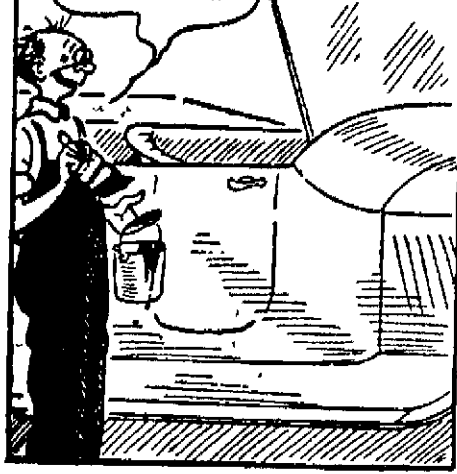

"I'm so sleepy," she said, and she spoke the truth. In one moment she was in bed, and in another half-moment she was asleep.

"Why?"
"Because they turn in."

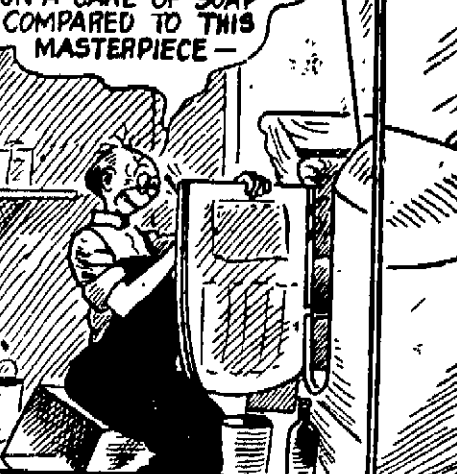

Strange Death Post
A strange death post of lovers was revealed at a coroner's inquest at Jamaica. A note was found pinned to a pair of shoes. Before she died, the coroner said, she snatched her lover with a hug, which penetrated his heart.

MOST OF THE INDIANS LIVED IN GROUPS OR COMMUNITIES CALLED TRIBES. A TRIBE USUALLY MADE A PERMANENT HEADQUARTERS IN SOME REGION WHERE THE GAME WAS ABUNDANT AND THE FOOD PLENTIFUL BUT THE WARRIORS OFTEN WANDERED MANY MILES AWAY ON HUNTING PARTIES OR TO MAKE WAR.

EACH TRIBE HAD TWO LEADERS. THE FIRST WAS THE SACHEM. HE PRESIDED AT THE TRIBE COUNCIL WHICH DECIDED ALL MATTERS, AND WAS CHOSEN FOR HIS WISDOM AND ELOQUENCE.

THE OTHER LEADER WAS THE CHIEF WHO LED THE WARRIORS OF THE TRIBE INTO BATTLE. HE WAS CHOSEN FOR HIS STRENGTH, COURAGE AND MILITARY PROWESS.

THE TYPICAL TRIBAL DWELLING WAS THE "LONG HOUSE," BUILT OF A FRAMEWORK OF STOUT SAPLINGS COVERED WITH BARK. OFTEN AS MANY AS FIFTY FAMILIES LIVED IN ONE OF THESE LONG HOUSES, AND SHARED THEIR FOOD IN COMMON. EACH FAMILY OCCUPIED A COMPARTMENT WHICH OPENED OFF A CENTRAL HALL.

THE PEACE SIGN.

EACH TRIBE HAD ITS OWN LANGUAGE SO THAT WHEN AN INDIAN MET A STRANGER HE WAS OBLIGED TO CONVERSE BY MEANS OF SIGNS.

TOMORROW—CHARACTER OF THE INDIAN

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(By Mrs. Western Newspaper Union.)

Be like the bird that, halting in its flight, Awails on boughs too slight, Feels them give way beneath her, and yet sings, Knowing that she hath wings.

—Victor Hugo.

FOODS THAT ARE LIKED

Fresh fish, which in most localities is plentiful and inexpensive, makes a good main dish, easy of digestion and served with a cucumber or tomato salad, is usually well liked.

While the mushrooms are plentiful, pickle and can some and make a few bottles of:

Mushroom Catsup.—Wipe, but do not wet, fresh mushrooms. Put them in layers well sprinkled with salt, in an earthen dish. Cover with a clean folded cloth and let stand for twenty-four hours. Mash and strain them through a sieve. To every quart of this liquor add an ounce of peppercorns, and boil slowly for a half hour. Then add one-fourth ounce of whole allspice, one-half ounce of ginger root, one dozen whole cloves, three blades of mace and cook fifteen minutes. Take from the fire, strain again and bottle. Dip corks in paraffin.

Repout of Liver.—Cut one pound of calf's liver into dice and put it over the fire in cold water or stock to cover. Cook one hour, at the simmering point, seasoning with salt, pepper, a little ground mace, a sprig of parsley and sweet marjoram. Rub together two tablespoonsful of browned flour with one of butter; add this to the saucepan with one teaspoonful each of lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Stir until thick and serve dotted with cubes of current jelly.

Arabian Pudding.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, add one well-beaten egg, three tablespoonfuls of sweet milk, one cupful of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-fourth cupful of any kind of chopped nuts, twelve dates stoned and chopped. Mix and bake in a well-buttered pan twenty minutes. Serve with the following sauce: One cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, mix well, add the juice and rind of a lemon and a scant two cupfuls of boiling water. Cook until smooth, adding a tablespoonful of butter and a flavoring of grated nutmeg, just before serving. A spoonful of jelly adds to the appearance of the sauce.

Dear Me.—She said, "If the reason we all feel so sleepy in the morning anyway is because we have at least taken a little trip with the Sun in our wishes?"

"But I'll never ask for an adventure such as I had last night when I went where the sun was. Goodness, I don't see how the sun stands such hours!"

"I'm so sleepy," she said, and she spoke the truth. In one moment she was in bed, and in another half-moment she was asleep.

21 Arrested in Dynamite Plot

Government Roundup Men for Alleged Participation in Dynamiting Niagara Falls Car During 1923 Strike.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Buffalo, N. Y., June 2.—All the former street car employees, labor organizers and union officials the government intends to place under arrest for alleged participation in the dynamiting in August, 1923, of a Niagara Falls high speed train at Ellwood Crossing, Tonawanda, probably will be in custody today, general officials said last night. Twenty-five indictments have been reported to Federal Judge Hazel. United States marshals have arrested twenty-one.

Among the men indicted and who have surrendered to the federal authorities is William P. Collins of Tonawanda, N. Y. It is charged that William B. Fitzgerald, vice president of the International Street Railway Men's Union, William P. Collins of Tonawanda, a union official, and Frank T. O'Shea, a national labor organizer of St. Louis, "incited and counseled" the accused men named Kelly, Breese, Lauder and Kennedy to blow up the train. Fitzgerald, Collins and O'Shea have surrendered and are free in bail of $10,000 each.

The indictment against Collins and others charges that they jointly conspired to restrain trade and commerce among the "states and foreign countries" between July 1, 1922, the day on which the Buffalo street car strike was called, and August 17, 1922, when the high speed train was blown up.

Although mentioned among the men indicted for conspiracy, former State Senator Robert C. Lacey has not been taken into custody yet. Lacey is not charged with any specific offense in the indictment. Lacey said he does not intend to surrender to the United States marshal unless officially notified.

Find Two Bombs At "L" Stations

New York Police Begin Search of All Subway and Elevated Stations, Fearing Plot to Blow up City's Transit Lines.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, June 2.—Fears of a plot to blow up the city's transit lines were expressed by police today following the discovery of two mysterious wooden boxes on the Third Avenue Elevated Lines. Believing the boxes to be infernal machines, police threw them into the East River.

Both boxes were placed on the "L" station platform in such a manner that a train could not pass without striking them.

They were found by Motorman Michael Harrington. One was on the 59th street station and the other was on the 89th street station.

One of the detectives sent to examine the boxes said he received a shock while picking one of them up. The boxes were first put into pairs of water and later thrown into the East River without having been opened.

Police then began a search of all subway and elevated stations in order to make sure the boxes were not a part of a concerted plan of bomb throwers.

Bright Velveteen for Short Coats

Little Garments Worn Over Creme de Chine and Flannel Frocks.

New and again fashions displays certain inconsistencies that seem a bit astounding, but this only proves that everything is a part of the mill of the mode, and there is nothing that cannot be incorporated into fashion if it is done with skill and knowledge.

Who would have dared a few years ago to utilize chins and cretons for costume purposes, to use velvet for bathing suits and silk fabrics for sports, to consider hats of felt not as a seasonal mode but for all times and all occasions? Yet these are phases of the mode which have become so definitely established that one takes them quite as a matter of course.

The winter witnessed a revival of velveteen and the great success was a little two-piece frock with its circular skirt and boyish overblouse. That the possibilities of this becoming material are not exhausted is shown by new models that have been introduced. They consist of little short coats, which are made of velveteen in bright colors and are worn over white crepe de chine and flannel frocks or dresses that harmonize in tone.

Topcoats considerably longer are fashioned of velveteen and corduroy in natural tones of gray and beige and are lined with kasha. Then, too, there are ensembles which show a coat of velveteen banded with crepe de chine and frock of the silk trimmed with velveteen. They are extremely attractive and have been quite generally accepted by the best dressed women.

Scarf Hat Innovation for Early Summer Wear

The real innovation of the early summer may be the scarf hat. With nonchalant indifference to the type of hat—brimmed, turban or cloche—the scarf is added with equal success. It seems a happy combination, since the scarf has become a significant feature in the fashionable ensemble.

A hat that is both smart and serviceable is made of fine navy blue straw. A bit of fancy flowered ribbon is laid obliquely across the front of the crown, and a scarf of dark blue crepe is wound around the hat and fastened gracefully in detachable fashion at the back. In the popular Havana brown a hat of close-woven straw braid has at one side a motif of conventional floral pattern outlined with gilt, which is repeated at one end of a long scarf of the brown crepe, lined with a lighter shade. A black milan with the visor front brim and abbreviated back has attached a short, wide scarf with rounded ends of black satin faced with scarlet crepe. A cluster of crimson silk roses nestles close against the back of the hat and another is placed at the crown ends of the scarf on one shoulder. Five pretty flat reves in general shades of chiffon trim the back of another small hat of black milan, and three of these decorative each end of a narrow scarf of black satin.

The Hatpin Is Ornamental
The verge of hatpins, the small, ornamental pins that serve as the chief, often the only, trimming on the sports and plain straw hats, continue. There are among these some novelties in which the ornaments are of straw or wood or of ribbon tightly rolled into balls. These are equally attractive on the little cloche, ribbon or straw hats, several among the spring styles in millinery. The jeweled pins suitable for the dressier hats are made in the form of brooches, the latest being studded with rubies, emeralds and colored glass or semi-precious stones in designs of flowers, birds, butterflies and little animals.

Patching Wall Paper
When mending wall paper, never cut a regular patch, but cut out a suitably large piece and paste it over the place, carefully matching the pattern. This patch will show far less than if the original are cut square.

To Choose Colors That Flatter You

Analyze Complexion Before Selecting Apparel and Save Much Grief.

Never before has color played so important a part in the wardrobe, observes a writer in the Kansas City Star. The tendency of all ages to choose the hues of the rainbow has brought beauty to some and grief to many. Many a woman who has worn black-and-white or navy blue with distinction is encouraged to indulge in her fancy in one of the vivid tones only to destroy completely her distinction of being well-dressed.

There are many colors for every woman if she will choose carefully by analyzing her own color tones and studying the effect of the various shades on her complexion. Not for everyone is the natural shade of kasha. The definite type with dark hair and clear skin looks smart in the neutral tones. But the yellow-skinned or drab-haired becomes lifeless-looking in this colorless gray regardless of the smartness of the shade. There are tones that carry hints of rose and blue and green that may be used to reflect color into the face and give the garment character even on this type of weather.

Blue has long been a favorite with discriminating women who know it is this navy shade to be most becoming and serviceable. The lighter shades may soften the skin, and the vivid, bright blues lighten pale eyes. The grayed tones, periwinkle, periwinkle, corn flower, are the ideal choice of the blonde with clear skin. The brunette whose skin is not on the olive cast may wear it, but it is not her best choice to develop her best coloring.

Asides of tones, which the French have favored for some time, is coming to us in the facing on the brims of the large hats, in neckwear, and even in some entire frocks.

The browns, which apparently are of never-ending popularity, need care in their selection. Nothing is more pethetie than a drab or dark-skinned woman in a warm brown. Cigarette, Havana, beige, thrush, hazel all have warm tones and are best worn by the pale brunettes. The soft tans, light browns, fawns are equally good for blonde or brunette with clear skin.

Yellow is to repeat its success of last summer. While it is artistic in combination with the white attire of summer, its popularity, more likely, is due to the fact that there is a shade of yellow to flatter every complexion. For the brunette yellow is especially suitable. The blonde must wear it with discrimination as certain yellow imparts a violet cast to the skin. The cold shades, citron, olive and lemon are for the brunette, and the ash blonde will look her fairest blondness in the faint yellows. Orange is difficult to wear and is so vivid that it is most attractive when used only for contrast. Some brunettes find it whitens their skin. Apricot, not so daring a shade, may be worn either by the fair or dark-haired.

Thistlebloom, another of the season's favored colors, is a flattering choice for the woman who finds the neutral shades, the warm browns and the blues unsuited to her coloring. It is a rose orchid that freshens the color of the skin and may safely be worn by those to whom lavender is impossible. For the dark-haired type it is a salvation.

Green, always good for spring, and summer, should be chosen with considerable thought. The blonde may look cheap in the warm shade, the brunette with ruddy skin may take on a greenish cast and the blue-eyed woman become a green-eyed monster, while the Thistle-haired girl with ruddy color needs the slate tone. Chosen thoughtfully green is a flattering color that practically every type may wear.

Fish That Climbs

Scientific investigation into the habits of fishes has shown that many of them are by no means helpless when out of water. There is, for instance, a tropical fish known as the climbing perch, which has the very curious habit of ascending by means of its flat, up stomach, rostrum, and even the trunk of trees, in search of the insects on which it feeds.

Your Mind

is at rest... under trying conditions

This NEW way solves woman's oldest hygienic problem in a way centuries of women hoped for

THROUGH the ages, women have suffered a hygienic handicap.

Now it has been largely overcome. There is a new way in personal hygiene.

A way that supplants that uncertainty of the old-time sanitary pad with scientific safety.

Today, women live every day of every year... not a moment's charm lost. Dance, motor, wear, slimy frocks and gowns in full confidence.

The name is Kotex... a method scientifically right.

It absorbs 5 times the moisture of the ordinary cotton pad. And that means great protection.

It is as easily disposed of as a piece of tissue—that ends an old-time embarrassment.

It is deodorized. And that prevents danger of offense.

You get it at any department store or drug store, just by saying "Kotex." And that banishes the embarrassment of asking for a "sanitary pad."

In every 10 women in the better walks of life have adopted it. Which proves its benefits.

It will mean much to you in health, in cleanliness and protection. It proves old ways a needless folly.

AZTEC VENICE

On the Chinampas Canal, Near Mexico City.

ONE of the pleasurable experiences among those that delight the traveler in Mexico is a visit to the home of the Aztec lake dwellers. Much of the charm of the great Valley of Mexico, where they live, is due to the stretches of water among the trees and verdant fields in a landscape framed in beautiful mountains and bathed with clearest air of heaven.

Their lakes—Texcoco, Xochimilco, Zumpango and Chalco—do not reveal themselves except from the high mountains encircling the valley. They are shallow bodies of water in the midst of extensive marshes, unapproachable, and lacking the effect of our lakes with their definite shore-lines. For this reason they have never been highways of civilized commerce, nor has navigation flourished in their shallow waters; but they were from these very hindrances destined to be jealous mothers of ancient and remarkable states, whose people, protected in the fens, dug out canals and developed an indigenous commerce and transportation to the fullest extent.

They were for modern man a constant menace during seasons of flood and have required enormous engineering works to keep them in bounds. The first of these, never of great value, was begun some 300 years ago, and exists at the present time as a gigantic ditch over 13 miles long, 197 feet deep, and 801 feet wide, dug by the patient labor of impressed Indians, and called the Tajo de Nochistongo. The latest undertaking is a canal connecting the three lakes and leading their waters out of the valley by a tunnel through the eastern mountains. This splendid piece of engineering, completed some years ago, effectually controls the heights of the water in the lakes and prevents inundations.

But long before Cortez came, the Indians of the valley worked in the boggy lake lands and dug canals hither and thither—main canals between the lakes and to the great city of Tenochtitlan and smaller canals between their fields. Through this maze of waterways, then as now, they sent their boats and in the fens built their thatched houses. Historically, Cortez was the first European boatbuilder in the New World, when of an imperious necessity he launched his brigantines, of quaint sixteenth century pattern. If one may believe the artists, in the reeking waters of Texcoco at the spot near Huejutla where there is now a bridge called Puente de los Bergantines, not far from the capital.

Pere Sahagun, the Franciscan, records that "the City of Mexico is like another Venice, and the people themselves are comparable to the Venetians in urbanity and savoir." This was written in the sixteenth century, but in the lapse of several hundred years the city's wonderful water environment has become dry ground, and the sealer for lake dwellers will have to look farther afield in the entrancing valley of the sky.

In the Field of Flowers.

The way to the present Aztec Venice, which bears the name of Xochimilco, "in the field of flowers," is through one of these ancient canals—a prehistoric water road from Tenochtitlan to the capital and seat of one of the group of seven Aztec tribes which long ago came from remote Aztlan to the rich Valley of Mexico.

The life on the canal, vivid and picturesque, is as striking now as it was then; it may even be suspected that the change from that time to this has not been very great. It is hard to get a start to the land of the fens in more ways than one—the negotiations for passage in a barge with boatmen who display the characteristics of that tribe known the world over; and the conflicting claims also of all the costumes, incidents, shipping, and so forth, of the boating, squeezing kaleidoscopic canal and shore population on its multifarious quays border the beholder and make him forget that he is on a journey to see the lake dwellers in their primitive homes. Tardily, then, the barge comes into the clear pool in front of the medieval toll-gate fortress, where all shipping must go under a low bridge and there the old-time toll collector, armed with a pike, could threaten the recalcitrant without much effort.

Beyond the gateway begin more vistas of a new world. On this canal, bordered with trees and spanned by quaint bridges, is a perfect stream of craft, from the slender dugout chaloupe to the square-bowed flatboat, hurrying on with everything to feed, repair, and adorn the great city. The Indian boatmen, clad in white cotton shirts and trousers, are working with a will, sometimes wading in the canal and drawing the heavy-laden boats after them; and alas! returning to their paradise, a woman piloting her husband who is the worse for pique.

Pictures Along the Canal.

There are pictures and pictures innumerable, full of human interest and checkered with a marvelous play of light, shadow, and reflection, as we pass by the gardens and openings of the larger and smaller canals. Here are embankings and arrivals loading, unloading, and preparing to lay by for the night in a snug slip near where thatched houses play hide and seek in the luxuriant foliage; here a group of energetic washerwomen by the water margin, and there clouds of white or gaudy much-bellied clothes on the bushes. No secrets are here; all goes on with the pulsing, urging force of labor freely and openly before men.

One remembers gardeners and gardens in the sunny flower and vegetable plots and children peeping out on the canal highway from under umbrageous trees. Flotsam and jetsam in the canal are vagrant bulbs and flowers of water hyacinth, a wicked, beautiful plant, whose reproductivity makes men work to keep it down, but here it has met its match and is made to be useful. Bridges there are, and most quaint, like that perfect arch of Ixticaco, under which white geese seem to float in the air.

One feels that this panorama should last forever, especially if he does not have to supply the labor of locomotion. Here at this landing at Xochimilco it must be realized that the mere first leaves of our experience, the loveliness of the country of the lake dwellers, are just unfolding.

The town is really built on terra firma, as the seven churches, each well supplied with raucous bells, the streets of quaint houses, and the broad paved prehistoric market-place, well attest; but the town disguises and hides away the life of the canals and gardens, and its attractions for the tourist are soon compassed.

We turn into a narrow lane leading away from the formal streets and emerge into an Indian dooryard, and within a few feet of us is the main canal with its boats and floating water plants. The inhabitants of this little house, group into which we have come as from another sphere are interested and friendly and ready to visit.

Making a Floating Garden.

It is interesting to see lake dwellers constructing a "floating" garden, and one is carried back without effort several centuries into the past. From the canals the busy Aztecs throw great masses of water hyacinth upon the strip of bog to the thickness of a foot or more. The water hyacinth, which unfortunately does not fit into the ancient picture, is provided with large cellular floats—a natural provision for its dissemination, which has made it an obstruction to navigation in some rivers of southern United States.

Upon this bed of floats they spread a layer of mud, dredged from the bottom of the canals. Perhaps before the plant floats have decayed, these gardens may drift away should the water rise. Even now on portions of the lake square miles of vegetation cover the surface like the "kidd" of the Nile, and the canal roads have to be staked at the sides to keep them from disappearing. Great drifts of microscopic vegetation cover the stagnant water of the open lakes with a mantle lovely in color, while the bottom is coral red from a weed that thrives in the water.

The term "floating gardens" was properly applied by the early historians of Mexico to masses of water reeds covered with a layer of rushes bearing a thin layer of soil, employed by the Mexicans at a period when the decreasing waters of the lakes prevented the formation of permanent chinampas, and so in the New World the Indians repeated the famed gardens of the lakes of Cashmere.

Expansion Drive Meeting

where the merchants, both wholesale and retail, could get together to discuss their problems; the civic bureau, where all who are interested in the civic welfare of the city could have a voice; a publicity bureau, to advertise the advantages of the city, and finally a membership council to discuss all matters pertaining to the city's interests.

Had Received a Warning.

In discussing the activities of the proposed civic bureau Dr. Michael said that it should be a bureau where constructive criticism could be formulated. Just before coming to the meeting, one of the leading uptown business men, who had been unable to attend the dinner, had called at his house and related an incident of the afternoon. The business man said that one of his customers, a woman, had happened to park her car on the wrong side of the street while she was in his store for about three minutes.

"He said that she was arrested by the policeman," said Dr. Michael, "but I believe he was mistaken. For today I happened also to park my car on the wrong side of the street while transacting some business and when I came out one of the policemen informed me that I had parked my car in the restricted area. He was very courteous about it and told me not to do it again. Probably I deserved being handed a yellow ticket and told to report to the chief of the new policemen. I do not know his name and I know he was a new man for he did not know me for he called me 'Mister.' Generally all who know me call me 'Dr.' or some other appellation. But I appreciate his courtesy. But I won't park on that side of the street again. That was the reaction I received. The business man said that the woman told him she would never shop in Kingston again, that was the reaction she received."

Dr. Michael said he knew that the city authorities were always willing to receive suggestions and cooperate for the best interests of the city and if any one believed that parking regulations should not be enforced or should be removed from certain sections, that the suggestion would receive attention.

In closing, he called attention to the fact that the membership drive would start promptly at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday morning and requested that all who were to participate in it be on hand on time.

Father Baldwin's Telegram.

Judge Fowler read the following telegram that had been received from Father Ignatius Baldwin, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception on Delaware avenue: "My enclosures prevent me being personally with you, but I am with you with my whole heart and energy for a bigger and more effective Chamber of Commerce in Kingston. All power to you and Kingston will benefit by it. Best Kingston and give us more factories."

President Dow Spoke.

The last speaker on the program was Alexander C. Dow, president of the Fourth Avenue Chamber of Commerce, who gave a stirring address on community development. He believed that Kingston should strive use its historical background to interest the thousands of passing tourists to stop over and visit the historical buildings and spots in the city. He said it spoke well of Kingston when during the past two and a half years of the business depression prevalent over the country that the bank deposits had increased several millions of dollars here. He spoke of the harmony that prevailed among the Hudson river towns, and that all should work together for the betterment and the development of the Central Hudson Region. In closing he said he was positive that Kingston would go over the top in the present campaign.

Abramovitz Spoke.

Judge Fowler said that before closing the meeting he desired to give any one an opportunity of speaking as it was an open session. His invitation was accepted by L. Abramovitz of Albany avenue. Mr. Abramovitz apologized for his broken English and said that he had now been a resident of the country for five years. He is the man who purchased the uncompleted George J. Smith mansion on Albany avenue where he now resides. He said that he had not come to this country to do business, but to retire. When he and his family landed in New York city, his children had surveyed the closely grouped buildings and said to him, "Papa, where is there a place to play; did we come here to play dominoes?"

That led him to seek a location outside of New York and he had found Kingston. He believed that in order to induce the tourist to stop, there should be beauty spots scattered about the city in the form of city parks. He said that recently he had had a distinguished visitor at his home who had come from France and he had taken him about the city to show him the beauty spots. He had shown him the handsome city hall, the fine high school and other buildings of interest but had been ashamed to show him the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Over in France the Chamber of Commerce is housed in one of the finest structures, but in Kingston it was housed in a little building.

He said he believed in the work of the Chamber of Commerce and was glad that he was now a resident of Kingston.

Helped to Make it Success.

The dinner was one of the most successful ever held by any organization in Kingston and will long be pleasantly remembered by those who were present. The banquet was prepared by the committee on Treasury and Company and the Rialto Gas Service Company. The place was decorated by E. Winter's Sons, while the chairs were by the men were from Fitzpatrick & Draper and G. W. Van Slyke & Horton.

Are you running your Balloon Tires hard or soft?

THE original idea back of balloon tires is the added comfort of riding on a soft cushion of air.

Every extra pound of pressure that must be put into a balloon tire to make it serviceable takes away just so much from the cushioning.

Many balloon tires today are run harder than they should be for maximum cushioning.

This is done to save the tires from excessive wear.

But here is a Balloon Tire that need not be over-inflated to save it from early and uneven tread wear or tread separation.

You can run U. S. Royal low pressure balloons at true low air pressure and it won't hurt them.

Because—

They have the new "Low-Pressure Tread," which prevents early and uneven tread wear—

And they are built of Latex-treated Web Cord, which gives maximum strength and flexibility.

No matter what your experience with other balloon tires may have been—

Do not over-inflate these tires to save them from quick and excessive wear.

It is not necessary.

They are made for true low air pressure.

Discretion an Important Item

Not Impetuosity, but Consideration of All Existing Circumstances Produces Greatest Rescue Efficiency.

This is the fourth of the series of helpful hints in the water, written by a noted life saving expert, with a view to reducing drownings. The fifth will appear tomorrow.

Lesson No. 4—"Row, Throw, Go Tow"—Order to follow in saving.

(Written for International News Service.)

The life saver who uses his head is the one who makes the rescue. One should always use the best mechanical help available when attempting to save a life. When pitted against the forces of the sea, man's efforts are puny unless he utilizes those forces to fight for him instead of against him.

Here is a safe rule: Never dive into the water when a cry for help goes up without first considering how you are going to get out again. An ill-considered action is often more deserving of censure as foolhardiness than it is of praise as bravery. A foolhardy act may result in two deaths instead of one.

Swimming is the last recourse in attempting to rescue a drowning person off shore in deep water. Whenever possible use a boat in going to the rescue. This provides the means for a safe landing, for rescuer and rescued.

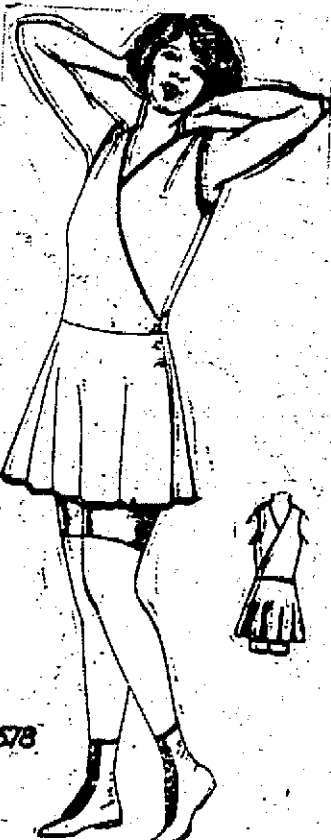

Use Boat or Life Buoy. If no boat is available, then throw a life buoy, or, if the victim is too far to be reached by a throw, swim out with the buoy. Leave the end of the line in shore to be pulled in in case of current or surf.

A buoy can be safely handed to the drowning person without the danger of the rescuer being grasped and pulled under.

As a last resort, if neither boat nor life buoy is available, then swim to the rescue, but pick your hold and tow the person ashore.

The rule in making a rescue is: Row a boat; throw a buoy; go yourself; tow person to safety.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Unique and Practical Bathing Suit.

4678. This model provides breeches joined to one-half of the waist and the skirt joined to the other half, both forming the complete design illustrated. The waist portions cross each other in simple style with a very simple effective closing. One could use jersey, oil silk, rubberized gingham or silk, as well as alpaca, a decoration.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires 3½ yards of 40 inch material. Steamer Albany Broke a Piston

The steamer Albany, of the Hudson River Day Line, broke a piston Monday noon on its way down the Hudson and was forced to go to shore at Malden.

Busses of Sagerties were quickly obtained and the 600 people were transported from the Malden dock to the West Shore station, at Malden, where extra coaches were put into service. The passengers went as far as Newburgh, where they again boarded a steamer and continued the trip by water to New York.

The mishap occurred after the boat had left the Catskill dock. There was no confusion in landing the passengers.

LEATHER RETURNS.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Alligator shoes are among those which have become of style interest, and next, or of equal concern, are those fashioned of lizard. Dooskin pumps, particularly when matched to the gown, are another delight to the woman who is an enthusiast on this new game of matching up—almost as absorbing as a crossword puzzle.

Reptile skins are by no means only to be trod upon, for novelty belts and bags, hat trimmings and the like, are made of them. The discovery has recently been made that the average woman spends more for her shoes than she does for her hats. This is accounted for not because of short skirts but because of interesting shoe developments, some of which employ inlays of reptile with patent leather or with white.

Dress of Black Satin With White Satin Forming the Collar, Cuffs and Slender Slip.

Novelty is necessary to satisfy the average woman who sallies forth to be shod. She may be glad to know that while blonde satins are not passe, blonde kids are newer, and that one may introduce a touch of color in one's footwear, especially if it is in combination with white.

Novelties are wanted also in gloves, and it is wise to have a kinship of spirit, at least, between them and shoes. Gauntlets, sometimes with exaggerated and highly ornamental cuffs, are liked, and perforations showing contrasts in color are used as a decoration.

Leathers and kids are not amiss as a trimming for dresses of a type, for hats, and certainly for coats, while handbags, which, in the not so long ago, were of silk, are more often in suede or leather of some sort—purple, parrot green, bright blue, and reds being—with gray and beige—the best-liked shades. Black is, for the moment, out of favor, though black gloves and shoes are still asked for in smart shops.

A GOWN OF MANY INTERESTS.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Occasionally one finds a frock that has several style features, and such a frock is invariably pounced upon by those who copy rather than create. This accounts for the curiosities frequently seen among French imports—they are interesting parts assembled, rather than a whole, with one part closely related to another.

Leathers and kids are not amiss as a trimming for dresses of a type, for hats, and certainly for coats, while handbags, which, in the not so long ago, were of silk, are more often in suede or leather of some sort—purple, parrot green, bright blue, and reds being—with gray and beige—the best-liked shades. Black is, for the moment, out of favor, though black gloves and shoes are still asked for in smart shops.

A Middy Top and a Skirt With a Kick-Flounce.

In the frock sketched, there are four—perhaps five—significant details. First, the costume is made in two instead of one part; second, it has a flaring apron; third, buttons are used as a decoration; fourth, there is an estimated waistline suggested by a belt; the buckle of which is alone worth studying.

One might go still further and dilate on the fashionable brevity of the skirt, the demurely turned-down collar, and the rather out-of-the-usual sleeves. Not many dresses are so completely "a model," since any of the ideals involved are capable of several interpretations and are alone enough to lift a gown out of the realm of mediocrity. The close neckline is another indication that even though one may not always wear sporty clothes, they are nothing loath to make use of details associated with them.

The flare is not only a fad but a fashion. It is developed in any number of ways. Lanvin making a taffeta coat which flares from the shoulder, and in so doing, adding to her laurels.

The precedence of silk is undisputed this season, the cotton gown, even for the dog days, being of secondary importance. In advance fall collections one sees the realm of silk invaded, and senses a growing style interest in cloth gowns, an interest already manifested by kashan, hannelle, and the like.

Public Service Commission Grants Cold Spring Request for Central Hudson Service

The decision of the Public Service Commission in the Cold Spring case has met with public favor throughout the Central Hudson region, particularly in Cold Spring, where the public representatives insisted on their right to Central Hudson service.

The people of Cold Spring and vicinity, through their officials, had secured the Central Hudson system to come in, granting franchises and awarding a street lighting contract.

These franchises and contract were awarded to the Philipstown Electric Corporation, which is a part of the Central Hudson System.

Application was made to the commission for permission to exercise these rights and it was granted on the showing at a hearing held in Cold Spring that this company "was brought into the field by the petition of the residents of Cold Spring, and awarded a contract for public lighting by the village authorities."

And it was held by the commission that "it would seem that the public interest would be best served by granting the petition of the Philipstown Electric Corporation to exercise its rights in the Village of Cold Spring."

The quotations are from the Commission's decision, the text of which is of direct interest to the thousands of customers and security holders of the Central Hudson System, and is given here in full:

When the people of Cold Spring, through the village authorities, requested the Philipstown Electric Corporation, which is a part of the Central Hudson System, to come in and light their streets, and provide electric service in their home and business places, a problem was created for the Public Service Commission.

There was a company already in the field without a franchise, but the people insisted, nevertheless, of having Central Hudson service.

The Commission has rendered a notable decision upholding the people of Cold Spring in their contention. The opinion was written by Chairman Pruden and all the members of the Commission concurred.

to operate in the northern part of the town of Philipstown. The Philipstown Electric Corporation asks authority to operate in the same locality. Both companies have franchises from the Town Board of Philipstown, that to the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company, having been granted on August 28th, 1924, and that to the Philipstown Electric Corporation on January 27, 1925. The Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company did not apply to this Commission for authority to exercise its rights until January 27th, 1925, more than four months after it had secured the franchise applied to this Commission on January 2, 1925 or almost immediately after securing its franchise. The application of the Philipstown Electric Corporation also asks authority to exercise its rights under a franchise granted by the Village of Cold Spring on January 23rd, 1925, to operate in that village.

The territory in the town of Philipstown for which both companies are applying, may be definitely described as being that part of the town, excluding Cold Spring and Nelsonville, lying north of an irregular line beginning at a point on an inlet of the Hudson River, and extending to the Indian River, and thence due northeast to Duck Pond. This being shown on a map introduced in evidence as Exhibit 2.

Nature of the Evidence.

The Philipstown Electric Corporation has sought to show that its application should be granted on the ground that the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company has not at any period of its existence given satisfactory service. In support of this the Company called some fifteen witnesses. Their evidence may be summarized by stating that there can be no doubt the service of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company has for a number of years been unsatisfactory. Among these witnesses were a number of officials who testified to the unsatisfactory nature of the public lighting given by the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company. Witnesses also testified that efforts to get the company to extend its lines into other parts of the town of Philipstown had been unavailing. No evidence was given that did not indicate that the service of the Philipstown Electric Corporation, where it has been operating in the town of Philipstown, was satisfactory.

The Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company made little effort to challenge the attacks made upon its service in the past, conceding that lack of financial resources had stood in its way. It did seek to prove, however, by (Witnesses) all qualified engineers (Messrs. Strain, Ives, Lamar and Cheney) that the company is now under new control and that surveys have been made of its necessities and that financial means will be available for its purposes. It was also determined that the Village Board of Cold Spring, with the applications of both companies before it for franchises to operate in the village, had rejected the application of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company and granted that of the Philipstown Electric Corporation. Also, that the application of the later company had been made at the instance of the Village Board; also, that the Board had many times been forced to consider the installation of a local plant for street lighting purposes because of dissatisfaction with the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company. It was at so proved that when the Village Board granted the application of the Philipstown Electric Corporation it had been informed by representatives of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company that the Associated Gas and Electric Company had taken over the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company. A circular was issued to the customers of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company setting forth that the Associated Gas and Electric Company was now the OWNER of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company.

It must be understood, therefore, that when the Village Board of Cold Spring rejected the application of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company for a franchise and granted one to the Philipstown Electric Corporation, it had been fully informed of the changes in the plans for the management of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company.

Mr. T. R. Beal, President of the Philipstown Electric Corporation, and also President of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Company, testified that his estimates furnishing service in the new territory it is proposed to serve would amount to $11,000. No estimates covering similar service were put in by the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company, although it was shown on its behalf that there were expenditures of $2,000 already contemplated in the Village of Cold Spring and the company had gone to certain expense in reference to the action on the applications.

In respect to the applications of the two companies to operate in the upper part of the town of Philipstown, the application of the Philipstown Electric Corporation should be granted, and that of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company denied. The record of the Philipstown Electric Corporation, where it has operated in Philipstown, is good and there is no reason to suppose it will not make an equally good record elsewhere. The record of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company is not good and even under its new management it has yet to prove itself a competent applicant for an extension of its operations. It is true that it secured a franchise from the Town Board in August, 1924, but it failed to apply to this Commission for authority to operate until January 27, 1925, and it was clear from the testimony of witnesses and the petition of residents, filed as Exhibit 14, that its delay in seeking to exercise its right had a good deal to do with the action of the Town Board in granting a franchise for the same territory to another company on January 27, 1925.

Regarding the application of the Philipstown Electric Corporation to operate in the Village of Cold Spring, a somewhat more delicate question is presented. The Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company is operating in that village without a franchise but with a definite investment. So that it is necessary to consider the expediency of permitting another company to occupy the same territory. We are, however, faced with a practical situation. The Village Board rejected an application of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company for a franchise as late as January 23, 1925, and granted one to the Philipstown Electric Corporation. It has also entered into a contract for street lighting with the Philipstown Electric Corporation on February 6, 1925. It is clear that a sentiment is against doing business with the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company despite the protestations of its new management that good service is assured.

In view of the fact that on the one side we have a long record of unsatisfactory service, and a refusal of the village authorities to do any business with the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company, and on the other, a company with a good record brought into this field by the petition of the residents of Cold Spring (Exhibit 3) and awarded a contract for public lighting by the village authorities, it would seem that the public interest will be best served by granting the petition of the Philipstown Electric Corporation to exercise its rights in the Village of Cold Spring. Therefore, the application of the Cold Spring Light, Heat and Power Company, Case 2284, should be denied, and the application of the Philipstown Electric Corporation, Case 2285, approved, and an order to that effect entered.

Reformed Synod Meeting Thursday

General Governing Body to Remain in Session Until June 10—Many Important Matters Up for Action.

The spirit of union is shown in the old Reformed Dutch Church, now known as The Reformed Church in America, which begins its one hundred and nineteenth regular general synod at Asbury Park, N. J., on Thursday, June 4, at 2:30, standard time, for there is to come before that session an overture from the Classis of New York, which is the city of New York, asking that steps be taken towards a closer union with the Reformed Church in the United States, formerly known as The German Reformed Church.

The Women's Board of Domestic Missions has had a most successful year. They have raised $188,333.89 for their work, which includes $1,692 for work beyond the border.

The ministerial pension fund also reports that the pension fund of one million dollars which the church is trying to raise by 1928 is well under way and a substantial sum in cash is already on hand.

The program for the meetings of synod is about completed. On Friday morning the Rev. J. C. Leonard, D. D., of Lexington, N. C., president of the general synod of the Reformed Church in the United States, will bring the greetings of that body.

The Rev. Harry L. Bowley, D. D., secretary of The Lord's Day Alliance, and the Rev. H. C. Flack, of the Chicago Tract Society, will speak for these societies. On Friday afternoon the Rev. David C. Laishaw, chairman of the denominational counselling committee of the national council of the Y. M. C. A., will speak on the report of the committee on closer relations with other denominations.

Bishop Paul Jones, one of the secretaries of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, will speak on the report on Interdenominational Justice and Good will. On Friday evening, which is educational evening, the Rev. Abram Duryea, secretary of the board, and Robert Lincoln Kelley will speak.

The Rev. John Vandermeulen, D. D., of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky., will preach the ministerial pension fund sermon on Sunday evening and John R. Vorhis, general secretary, will speak for the Near East Relief Monday morning.

Monday afternoon will be given to Foreign Missions with a public meeting in the evening for the same cause. In the afternoon there will be addresses by the secretaries, F. M. Potter and Dr. William I. Chamberlain. In the evening there will be four eight-minute addresses from the four fields where the church is doing missionary work: China—Why I am going to Talmadge College, Amoy, by Kuhn Goan Chiu, M. A.; India—What Aroet Assembly means to the Reformed Church in America, by the Rev. John H. Warnshuis, M. A.; Japan—How does the exclusion clause affect the Church of Christ in Japan, by the Rev. H. V. E. Stageman, M. A.; Arabia—Can a Christian Missionary be a friend to a Moslem? by the Rev. John Van Eas, D. D. This will be followed by the presentation of new missionaries and the prayer of consecration.

Tuesday afternoon will be given to the Board of Domestic Missions with a public meeting for the same cause in the evening. In the afternoon the speakers will be the Rev. J. H. Baxter, the Rev. William A. Worthington, field secretary; the Rev. Seth Vander Werf and Secretary W. T. Demarest, LL.D. In the evening there will be two illustrated talks: Progress in Reformed Church Buildings, by Dr. W. T. Demarest, and Our Southern Neighbor—Mexico, by the Rev. Henry Shuyter, who has just returned from investigating a field in that country in view to locating a mission for the Indians there.

This board last year spent the largest amount for church building in its history—in all about $110,000. It has also opened thirteen new missions which it is expected will in time become churches.

Tuesday will also be Ladies' Day at Synod. In the morning The Woman's Board of Domestic Missions will be in charge and the speakers will be the Rev. John H. Baxter on The Indians in the United States—their present day outlook; the Rev. William Worthington of Annville, Ky., on Twenty-five Years with the Mountaineers of Jackson County, Ky. There will also be an address by a member of the deputation on the needs across the border in Mexico. Someone will also speak on The Frontier Work in the West.

The Mission Board, as authorized by Last Year's General Synod, have this year secured a secretary for Missionary Education in the person of S. Max Nelson. He is a son of the late Professor Nelson of Rutgers College and has served in the Reformed Church field in the Kentucky mountains and also in sociological and missionary work in New York City.

This synod will elect a professor of church history in The Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, N. J., in place of the late Rev. Edward P. Johnson, D. D. The Rev. Martin J. Hoffman, now president of Central College at Peoria, Iowa, is prominently mentioned for that position.

Synod will adjourn probably on Wednesday, June 14, to meet next year at Holland, Mich.

Thousands Send "Nixie" Letters

So Much Mail Matter Reaches Dead Letter Office, Post Office Department Has Set This Week Aside as "Better Mailing Week."

While it is generally accepted that this is not the age of miracles, nevertheless, there are thousands of patrons of the United States mails who take it for granted that Uncle Sam has many wonder-workers on his pay roll.

The very fact that there are wizards in the employ of the Post Office Department—men and women who are uncanny, to say the least, in deciphering illegible hand-writing—has caused no end of trouble and expense to the government as well as to the taxpayer, along with inconvenience in the receipt and delivery of mail matter.

Yet, with all this expert handling and careful study of hand-writing on the part of the postal clerks the annual revenue from dead mail matter received by the government amounts to approximately $300,000.

Last year, the Dead Letter Office received $120,000 from the sale of orphaned packages which could neither be forwarded to addressees nor returned to the senders because of inadequate addresses. The same office turned into the United States Treasury $55,523.96 in cash removed from misdirected letters or found loose in the mails.

Postage stamps were taken from letters or found loose in the mails having a value of $12,166.67, almost double the entire revenue of the postal service in 1789.

Three-cent fees collected for the return to senders of letters which could not be delivered totaled $32,007.54.

But this is not half the story. Checks, drafts and money orders, whose owners could not be located, and amounting to $3,546,542.54 finally found a resting place in the Dead Letter Office.

For want of correct or complete addresses 21,000,000 letters were deposited in the Dead Letter Office, not to speak of 800,000 parcels which had been improperly addressed or wrapped.

Strange to say, this depositing of letters and packages in the mails with incomplete, inadequate or incorrect addresses and wrapping comes, in a large majority of cases, from those patrons who are the most liberal contributors to this branch of the United States government.

It has been estimated by postal officials that 80,000,000 pieces of mail are given "directory service" every year, which means that employees must take time from the regular handling and dispatching of mail in the endeavor to provide correct addresses for this huge volume of misdirected matter. In New York City alone, the cost of this service approximates $500 every day in the year and the total amount through the country is stupendous.

While the revenue from the Dead Letter Office is sufficient to keep that branch of the postal service functioning it is not nearly enough to pay the annual toll for support of the "Nixie."

A "Nixie" is a letter or parcel so improperly addressed that it can neither be delivered to the addressee nor returned to the sender without special treatment. This special treatment costs the Post Office Department or the taxpayer in the final analysis, approximately $1,740,000 every year.

In order to lift this tremendous burden from the shoulders of the Post Office Department and on the pocketbook of the American people, the first week in June has been set aside by Postmaster General New as "Better Mailing Week." An active nation-wide campaign will be conducted during that period for the purpose of impressing on the matter the necessity from every viewpoint of using more care in the addressing of his mail, not only letters but parcels as well.

Big Decrease in Factory Payrolls

April Decrease in Factory Payrolls Equals Last Year's—Reductions Due to Shorter Working Schedules, Seasonal Part-Time and Holidays.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 1.—Factory payrolls in New York state showed a decided loss from March to April. Wages of the workers for the week of April fifteenth are estimated at almost $35,000,000, which is 4 per cent below the March figure. The corresponding drop in employment was not quite 2 per cent. The heavier reduction in payrolls is explained by shorter working schedules, seasonal part-time and holidays. This statement was issued today by Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton.

A year ago manufacturing had already begun to slow up in the third and most severe phase of the depression. The decrease in employment at that time was larger than the change this month but the loss in wage payments is about the same for the two periods. In comparing April, 1925, with April, 1924, we find that this year there are over 60,000 fewer workers engaged in manufacturing in the state. Weekly payrolls are more than one and one-half million dollars less than a year ago.

This analysis is based on reports from manufacturers who employ 40 per cent of the factory workers of the state. They form a continuous series covering a period of over 10 years and are representative of both the industries and industrial districts of the state.

Factory workers received an average of $27.65 per week in April, almost the same as a year ago. Metals on the whole were below last year, particularly heating apparatus shops and shipyards. It was only in the automobile plants that workers were earning substantially more. On the other hand textile operatives were somewhat better off in the year to year comparison. Silk goods reported an improvement in earnings over 1924 and the lower average in the cotton mills meant largely that more were employed. A real gain in wages came in the shoe factories. These employed in men's clothing felt rather severe seasonal reductions.

Women Feel April Loss.

The loss from March to April for all factory workers amounted to 80 cents and was greater for women than for men. Men earned $30.80 while women averaged $16.80. Women were affected by reductions in electrical apparatus, largely radios, shoes and most of the textiles. Their average in the clothing shops dropped from $18.60 to $17.75.

Men in heating apparatus plants received $28.40 where they had earned $33.45 the month before. This was almost entirely the result of a revision of working schedules. Automobile workers were better off. Reductions in textiles, shoe factories and clothing shops affected men as they did women, except in the case of higher paid garment workers where seasonal losses were more severe for the men.

Seasonal Losses in Metals.

The contraction in metals which began to be evident in February extended to practically all the various metals industries in April. The decrease for this month ranged from one per cent in instruments and appliances and jewelry to 17 per cent working apparatus shops where reduced. The only exception to the downward movement was in the automobile factories where wage payments were higher than in March, 1924, the peak since the post war expansion. In most industries the loss in payrolls also meant a decrease in the average received by the workers. This was true in the copper mills, railroad equipment and machinery shops, and hardware factories. Seasonal decreases and the end of overtime accounted for the reduction in agricultural implements and cutlery.

Textile mills also reported that the April curtailment was distributed throughout the different lines of manufacture. The average for all textile operatives went down from $22.40 to $22.00. The end of the strike in some of the cotton mills sent up payrolls for this industry but other mills shared in the downward movement, particularly those producing yarns. Spindles in worsted and woolen mills were less active and although forces were smaller earnings dropped in April. Silk and cotton knit goods and silk materials were irregular.

The ending of the season in most of the clothing trades meant smaller earnings for the workers. This applied especially to men's and women's outer garments where the loss per worker averaged more than $4. Manufacturers of men's and women's furnishings reported substantial decreases in payrolls, partly because of holiday observances. Operatives in shoe factories received less, particularly upstate.

Building materials did not show the increase in earnings to be expected at this time of year. Part time kept down the average in the brickyards. Men are earning $19.70 where they received $24.39 a year ago. Cement plants were the only ones to report increased activity in April. Here conditions compare favorably with 1924.

Part time in some of the piano factories resulted in a $2 drop in the weekly wage for the division. Furniture workers averaged slightly more as forces were reduced. Rug factories kept production near the high level of preceding months. The group of chemicals and oils showed the least change in April.

Seasonal slowing up in some of the food plants accounted for a drop of 55 cents in the earnings of the workers. Losses in flour, other grocery products and candy were rather heavy. Cigar makers continued to average $18.50 in spite of the large number who were released from the factories this month.

Clothing Decreases in New York.

New York city and Rochester, the clothing centers of the state, both reported large decreases in factory payrolls from March to April. In New York city the loss reached 7 per cent, in Rochester 6 per cent. Seasonal reductions in the garment trades amounting to 20 and 25 per cent determined the size of the reduction in both cases. But other industries of these districts, metals, wood products and food, also lost ground.

Metals Lose in Capital District.
The curtailment in the basic metal industries resulted in severe drops in both the capital district and Buffalo. In the former, the 5 per cent decrease in April brought payrolls to within 3 per cent of the low point of the depression last summer. Railroad equipment and machinery were most prominent in the decline over the year although heavy reductions in steel were important in the month to month loss. There were net losses in some of the textiles and in the shirt and collar industry.

In Buffalo earnings dropped 75 cents to $30. This is the lowest average since the summer months. The only metal industry to be more active in April was automobiles where the workers benefited by an increase of $1 in their average wage. Other metals, steel, copper, heating apparatus and railroad equipment, slowed up and metal workers on the whole earned $1 less than in March. Seasonal factors caused a reduction in food and clothing.

Utica Mills Resume Operations.
The end of the strike in the cotton mills of Utica covered the loss which occurred in the other industries of this district. Payrolls in the metals dropped 6 per cent below March as part time was put in effect in some of the factories. Conditions in knit goods were spotty.

Syracuse Shows Only Gain.
The rapid rate at which the automobile has been advancing made Syracuse the only district to show an actual gain in payrolls. The increase was only 2 per cent, slightly less than the corresponding gain in employment. Payrolls in the automobile factories are now only 6 per cent below the peak of 1924. However, foundries turning out castings showed small declines in earnings. Clothing workers felt seasonal reductions here as in the rest of the state.

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, June 1.—Dr. Cady of Kingston, the well known lecturer, will give one of his travel lectures in the Flatbush Church on Wednesday evening June 3, 8 p. m., using stereoscopic pictures to illustrate his lecture. Next Sunday is "Go to Church Sunday" and also the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered.

The M. E. Church Sunday School have begun rehearsals for children's day which will be held the second Sunday in June.

Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Churchill of Highland and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Churchill and daughter of Nyack, N. Y., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Osterhoudt and family.

Mrs. Wesley Scudder entertained a number of tourists over Sunday. She also has her house open for the summer and also has a grove where campers can be accommodated.

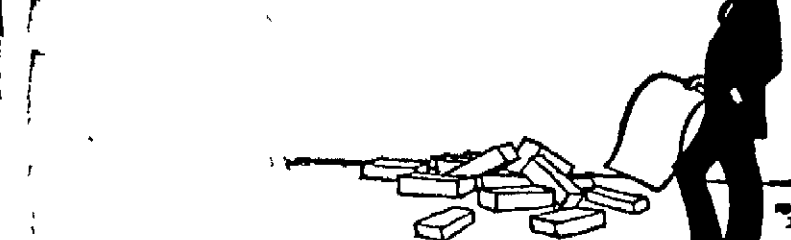

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Enser and son Joseph of Amsterdam, N. Y., and Mrs. George Burgher and children of Endicott, N. Y., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wood over Memorial Day.

Miss Bertha Hunt the primary teacher, will close her school on Friday, June 5th. Miss Anna Riseley the principal, has one more week.

J. G. Steinhart of Kingston was in town on Wednesday and sold to C. E. Wood and F. S. Osterhoudt each an Easy electric machine.

Bill the Builder speaks up

"I HAVE gotten into the habit of putting Thatcher Steam or Hot Water Boilers in the houses I build. In my section of the country everyone has a good word for the Thatcher Boiler. It does its job 100% and hates a big coal bill like a bull hates a red rag. Sure, I have a Thatcher in my own house. We never know a cold day indoors."

THE Thatcher Round Boiler (Steam or Hot Water) requires attention only once or twice a day to keep it firing perfectly. It is most conservatively rated, which means it holds ample heating power in reserve for unusually bitter weather. The Round Boiler is easy on the coal pile and almost runs itself.

Memorial Day At Saugerties

The Rev. Gregory Mabry Delivered
Memorial Day Address at Sauger-ties—Large Number Takes Part in Civic Celebration.

The Rev. Gregory Mabry, major, O.
R. C., delivered the following address at Memorial Day at Saugerties. The address was part of the civic celebration of Saugerties.

Warrior defenders of America, citizens of Saugerties, ladies and gentlemen:

In 1868 General John A. Logan, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, called upon the members of his organization to observe the thirtieth of May "for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in the defense of their country—with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year."
That was fifty-seven years ago.

General Logan's now famous Order Number Eleven has gradually touched the imagination of all Americans until today all the thinking element of America dutifully and gladly join forces in honoring not only the heroic defenders of the Union, but all the soldier and sailor dead of all wars, and no wars, who have given their lives in defense of America and America's ideals. Indeed, it has come to be that not only do our people honor their military dead on this day, but they have gradually come to make it a day sacred to all their dead.
May thirtieth has become America's All Souls Day.

General Logan's Order has been of even greater import than he could have foreseen, for not only has it given America a day upon which to remember those who have gone before, but the annual observance of this occasion serves—even more than any other of our patriotic holidays—to keep alive the flame of patriotism, and to remind our citizenry of our glorious privileges and solemn responsibilities as individuals in this Republic of ours, now, beyond dispute, the greatest nation and power on the face of the globe.

It would be easy, indeed, and agreeable today to address myself to delivering an eulogy of our heroic dead. It would be a pleasant task to recall to you the men who through their mighty deeds in battle gave birth to America. It would be informing to tell you just how much we owe to those men who fought for America's right to go and come upon the high seas as she pleased. It would be worth our time to give heed to the example of those men of vision who died in our contest with Mexico.
I would gladly occupy myself with praising the defenders of the Union.
I could with profit recount to you the sacrifices of those men who suffering from our always lamentable policy of unpreparedness, fought the ravages of disease and hardship in our war with Spain; and who, thereby, proclaimed America the knightly protector of wronged peoples, a recognized force for good as a nation, and set her upon the road to greatness to which she has attained. I could, I believe, thrill and inspire you with the superb example and virtues of those who offered their lives in the World War. It would be worth our while to consider those equally heroic dead, who, one by one, serving their country in far away places and unheard of corners of the world, have performed heroic deeds and suffered noble deaths without applause or notice. But to so occupy our time today would not be to utilize best the opportunity the occasion offers.

We decorate the graves of these sacred dead with love and gratitude;
with heartfelt reality we give thanks to the Author of our Liberty and the great God our King for their noble deeds and sacrifice. And all of that is meet and right. But in the solitude of my chamber and the secret closet of meditation I have considered whether, perhaps, they whom we commemorate may not have somewhat to say to us this great day. In fancy I have asked what they, O
Great and Revered! would say to us could they but break their progress
by return to us.

From the light which streams from their presence I seem to hear, as of one voice, "Serve!"

So let us consider how best we can serve America; how best we can give expression to our patriotism.

We are a tremendously rich nation and people; rich beyond avarice. We cannot even begin to realize our wealth. Unlike any other nation upon the face of the whole earth or has ever been on the face of the whole earth, there is really no part of our population to which we can truthfully refer as "The poor class."

There is no justified poverty among us except it be among the sick, the aged, and unfortunate. Our riches have come upon us with a rush. But the mere fact that we are blessed by God with such plenty may mean that we may damn ourselves with our bounty. Now, damnation is loss of character. And there are no virtues more contributory to character than thrift. Thrift is the great molder of character because it necessitates self-denial. Now, self-denial means doing without a thing when you not only could afford it but want it. Our bank deposits would indicate that we are a thrifty people, and yet, I greatly fear we have saved merely from our bounty and not through self-denial. Self-denial is the very foundation stone of America's greatness. The men of two hundred years ago and more, who built these charming old stone houses up and down our valleys in Ulster were men of thrift. Their houses show it. They were persons of character. Our president has been doing America and Americans his greatest service by emphasizing by his own example, and in the affairs of the nation, economy.

We live in the age of magic. Space has been eliminated and time abbreviated. Flying to the poles of the earth is but a matter of hours. You may sit in your own home and hear the scuffling of sherry's pipes on Scottish moors; you may sit on the coast of the Atlantic and listen to the waves beating on the coasts of the Pacific.

The automobile has enabled the world to fill the highways. Every kind of mechanical device is being invented to make life easy. But are we really any happier? May we not be paying a terrible price for our so-called conveniences? Is there not the greatest danger that having these marvels we greatly misuse them? Are we serving ourselves and our country well with these inventions? What are these things doing to us?

Labor organizations have reduced our hours of work. Because of our inventions we have been enabled to further curtail our hours of labor.
We have established daylight saving.
What for? That we may have more leisure. How are we as a people using our leisure? Are we the better, the happier, the healthier for our leisure?
Are we better read, better informed, more accomplished, more cultured? Is our leisure making us more beautiful? Is there any danger that we may degenerate under our leisure? Is leisure an end in itself or is it a means to an end?

I am not criticizing; I am asking questions about new problems which face us, and to which we must find answers if we are to give heed to the cry of those whom we today commemorate.

Today we pause to drop a rose (Perchance a tear)

Upon the earthy bed of those Who slumber here.

And rest and wait the coming dawn.

A little thing it seems; and yet
How shall we say
(Who have not learned to forget,
Not ever may)

The things our full hearts dwell upon

Our fallen comrades far away
In other lands.

Where poppies nod and grasses sway
And loving hands
No floral tribute may bestow.

Ah, yes, you know the pledge we make

This solemn day!

To do our part that none need take
The grievous way
You trod that truth should live, and Right

But, hear us! Should it ever be
Our lot to take
The cross of war for Liberty
May we not break
The faith with which you fought the fight.

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, June 2.—Mrs. John H.
Dufols visited her sister, Mrs. Wm.
T. Edwards, at Gardiner on Friday.

The Rev. J. Robert Haimshaw has just finished an arduous piece of work on which he has lately been engaged, that of editing and publishing in book form the minutes of the New York annual conference of the N. E.
Church.

Mrs. B. F. Gerv and family entertained Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Gerv month. Last winter the library received fifty-six volumes from Mary

C. Dickens Woolsey.

Johnston's garage has changed hands and is now under the supervision of H. O. Briggs.

Huguenot Grange will present a two act comedy entitled "Polly Wants a Cracker," at Grange Hall
Wednesday evening, June 3.

Dr. Branner of Modena has sold his 274 acre fruit farm, formerly the Oscar Hasbrouck place, fully equipped and stocked, to Mr. Coly of Newark, N. J.

Mrs. Peter Ean spent Wednesday in Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gulnac and family entertained friends from Modena on Sunday.

On Wednesday, June 3, at 8 o'clock, the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will meet in the Methodist Church. There will be a lecture with picture slides on India by the Rev. George B. Smith. The pictures were taken while Mr. and Mrs. Smith were in India. All who have heard Mr. Smith before will be glad to know they have the privilege of hearing him again. An invitation is heartily extended to the public.
An offering will be taken.

Miss Ella MacLaurie and Mrs.
Stahl motored to Lakerville on Wednesday.

Mrs. Nelson Kelly visited Poughkeepsie on Friday.

Jacob Nonemaker is ill at his home on Warts avenue.

Mrs. Raymond Jenkins with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Le-Fevre.

John McCord spent last week with relatives in Hyde Park.

John Hoffman of Gardiner was a business caller in town Monday.

Memorial Day exercises at Highland were in charge of the American Legion. There was a parade in which the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and various other societies joined, members of the G. A. R. rode in autos, and the Rev. J. Robert Haimshaw of New
Paltz delivered the address.

The annual union memorial service was held in the Reformed Church Sunday evening. All the churches participated in the service. The Rev.
F. W. West of the Congregational Church of Kingston was the speaker.
Special music was rendered by consistent choirs. Various organizations of the town attended in groups.

The funeral of Edna Mearns, wife of Lewis Farnham, who died May 23 was held from the late residence on North Chestnut street on Monday.
The Rev. Ernest Clark, pastor of the Reformed Church officiated.

Another new garage and repair shop will be built by Henry Toucher on his lot on Upper Main street and corner of Grove street. Mr. Toucher has been connected with Johnston's garage for the past twelve years. A gas tank will also be installed.

For the second year in succession
the Standard Bearer of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the Methodist Church have won the summer school scholarship for all round improvements in organization work.
The scholarship this year is tenable at Shunktown and the society will elect one of its members to take the course.

Mrs. Edith Knight, widow of Edwin S. Knight, was operated on at Vassar Hospital on Sunday for acute appendicitis and an abscess. Her daughter reports Mrs. Knight came through the operation all right and is making satisfactory progress.

The last meeting for the summer of the Women's Missionary Society of the Reformed Church will be held in the church parlors on Friday, June 5, at three in the afternoon. Miss Newberry of Romipetta, India, will speak. The Mary Beattie Missionary Society and the Dutch Guild are especially invited.

Jacob Nonemaker was taken to Vassar Hospital on Thursday night.

PESKY BED-BUGS

Bedbugs lay an average of seven eggs per day. Under favorable conditions they hatch in five days of which two thirds are female. They mature to adult size and are capable of laying in four weeks. How many bedbugs would you have in a year
if you left one female or 422 hatched?
For one year?

To rid the pesky bedbugs, you really need how necessary it is to use a preparation that will kill the eggs as well as the live bugs.

P. D. Q. has been demonstrated by the leading hospitals, hotels and railroad companies that the safest and most effectual way to stop future generations of bedbugs, roaches, moths and such is to use

Of Wartime Origin

The term "Anzac" as applied to the colonial soldiers of Great Britain during the World War, is derived from the initials of the words "Australian and New Zealand Army Corps." The phrase was used by General Birdwood in a telegram dispatched from the Gallipoli peninsula. Some have sought to interpret it as being composed of the initials of the British colonies—Australia, New Zealand, Africa and Canada.

Albany of Bond Issues Pointed Out by State Comptroller Who Advises Pay-As-You-Go Policy for Municipalities.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, June 2.—State Comptroller Vincent B. Murphy today urged officials of cities and villages in this state to acquire the Pay-As-You-Go habit in the expenditure of public funds and to steer clear of the "quick-fix" of bond issues.

In a speech delivered here before the annual meeting of the State Conference of Mayors, Comptroller Murphy deplored the tendency on the part of public officials to resort to expensive bond issues rather than to make ends meet through regular revenue.

The comptroller advised that it would not be a bad idea for public officials who supervise the spending of public money to put "Stop-Look-Listen" signs in their offices.

"We are," he said, "standing in the middle of a grade-crossing with a train load of heavy financial obligations bearing down upon us at a sixty mile an hour clip. If we get stalled, there is bound to be a smash-up."

"Stop-Look-Listen. Stop extravagance and waste. Look before you spend. Listen to the voice of economy."

Comptroller Murphy pointed to the record of economy achieved in the National Government by President Coolidge. He said that it is high time similar steps are taken by this state and its cities.

"On the state seal," he continued, "we find the legend Excelsior. This means Still Higher or Ever Upward. Those who placed it there did not intend it to have a double meaning, but as matters stand, Excelsior might well be taken to mean 'Still Higher' taxes and 'Ever Upward' costs of government."

Comptroller Murphy recognized the plight in which most city officials are finding themselves due to increased costs and admitted that a policy of blindly penny-pinching economy might not always be beneficial. He did say, however, that efficient economy can be practiced so that the public will get all the service it is entitled to and at the least possible cost.

He pointed to the fact that in twelve years the average net debt in municipalities in this state has increased nearly fifty per cent.

"In 1912," he said, "the net debt per capita was $1.04. In 1924, it was $1.45. This advance is due to an increase in the net debt of municipalities from $972,000,000 in 1912 to the sum of $1,587,000,000 in 1924. Think that over."

Comptroller Murphy deplored the trend of population from the farm to the city and said that too much cannot be done to encourage the farmer to stay on the farm.

"At the same time," he said, "it must not be lost sight of the fact that city residents are entitled to as much consideration as can be given them."

"Mounting cost of government," continued the comptroller, "does not necessarily indicate waste or extravagance. The public demands more and more service. But the public pocketbook, like the private pocketbook, must be considered. It may be that here and there; there is too much yielding on the part of officials to demands for things that are popular but not economic."

"The greatest danger in the path of public officials lies in the quicksand of bond issues. It is an easy way of getting money, but also an expensive way. The sound road to travel is the pay-as-you-go road. The beauty of the pay-as-you-go policy is that the one who follows it is always solvent. If you cannot pay, then you do not go. The power to borrow is so easily abused. The easiest words in the English dictionary are 'charge it.' But 'charge it' is a poor administrative policy. It is a very courageous optimist who without due consideration for the future will mortgage incomes or taxpayers fifty years hence by means of bond issues."

As an illustration of how bond issues are abused, Comptroller Murphy cited the purchase by a locality of a $580 steam roller in 1908. The funds were obtained through a bond issue, payable in 1940. No sinking fund was provided, with the result that fifteen years from now the taxpayers will have paid $223 in interest charges alone, aside from the $580 due on the steam roller which by this time has been retired to the scrap heap.

This afternoon, before a conference of village officials, Comptroller Murphy presented a tentative outline for a uniform village accounting system.

This is a subject to which the comptroller's office has devoted considerable attention during the past four months. At present the system of accounting in villages lacks uniformity and is in many places cumbersome and misleading to village officials.

Duke of York Opens Conference of Medicine—Ambassador Houghton Responds—Three Ulster County Doctors There.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 2.—The Duke of York opened the conference of the Interstate Post-Graduate Assembly of America today by welcoming five hundred American doctors to England. Neville Chamberlain, minister of health, also welcomed the Americans.

Ambassador Houghton, in responding, said:

"The Duke of York's acceptance of the presidency of the welcoming committee proves the reality of the friendly ties that bind our two nations through the comradeship of the medical profession. It bound us during the war and now it becomes a permanent peace time comradeship."

The Duke was made an honorary member of the assembly. He and President Coolidge are the only two men so honored.

The doctors already have spent six days at the chief medical institutions of Canada.

On arrival they were met by a reception committee whose president is the Duke of York. The doctors will remain in London for a week, incidentally sightseeing, but chiefly studying the methods of the British medical and surgical profession. They will attend lectures, demonstrations, clinics and operations at most of the leading hospitals of London.

After concluding their London visit, the doctors will make a tour of England, Scotland and Ireland, visiting, among other places, Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Newcastle, Belfast and Dublin. They expect to leave England for France on June 22; there visiting Paris, Lyons and Strasbourg before sailing for America on July 4.

Dr. C. H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn., is president of the assembly.

Ulster County is represented among the visitors by three doctors—Dr. Mark O'Meara and Dr. E. E. Norwood of Kingston and Dr. B. W. Gifford of Saugerties.

Legislature Passed Majority of Bills Favored by Municipalities and Only Two of Measures They Opposed Became Laws.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, June 2.—No new laws seriously detrimental to the administration of city and village affairs generally were enacted at the last session of the State Legislature, according to an announcement made at the opening session of the annual meeting of the State Conference of Mayors and Other City Officials here this morning by Mayor Harry E. Clinton of Troy.

As chairman of the General Legislative Committee of the Conference, Mayor Clinton reported that thirty-four of the sixty-six bills the cities and villages favored and only two of the fifty-nine measures they opposed, became laws.

"The Legislature aided the municipalities generally," continued Mayor Clinton, "by strengthening the City Home Rule, by 'freezing' the second class cities' law, by defining the term 'taxpayer' in reference to special elections, by giving to cities power to regulate the density of population, by amending the motor vehicle law so that municipalities will not in the future be hampered in prosecuting violations of speed ordinances, by clearly establishing the rights of cities and villages to regulate traffic and parking, by continuing the Home Rule Commission, by creating a commission to revise the village law, by authorizing the creation of regional planning, by enlarging the powers of villages and by permitting the municipalities to tax property, the legal title of which is in the United States."

"The Legislature protected the cities and villages by refusing to approve many proposed tax exemptions, the bill to reduce the revenue received from the bank stock tax, the measure requiring all cities and villages to provide uniforms for policemen, firemen, nurses and others; the bill to shift the cost of street paving from traction companies to abutting property owners, the measure to give the State Department of Health control of the instruction, location and operation of local comfort stations and the several measures designed to deprive municipalities of power to regulate busses and the substitution of busses for trolley cars."

Schubert Choral Club Concert

Two Noted Artists Secured to Assist in Concert Friday Evening for Benefit of Educational Department of Y. W. C. A.

On Friday evening of this week at 8:10 o'clock, the Schubert Choral Club will give its spring concert in the high school auditorium for the benefit of the educational department of the Y. W. C. A. Much favorable comment has been made on their last concert when they had Mr. Burleigh as the assisting artist, and the members of the club feel confident that their program on Friday evening will be equally pleasing.

Harold Hansen, tenor with the Hinshaw Opera Company, and Miss Winifred Marshall, soprano with the American Opera Singers' Company will appear on the program. Mr. Hansen has appeared both in opera and in concert in many cities and there has been most favorable comment on his work. He has a lyric tenor voice of great beauty and sings with great assurance and skill.

Miss Marshall is already known in Kingston, having appeared here in concert during the war. She is a singer of great charm and will do her songs in costume. She is to sing a group of children's songs and later she and Mr. Hansen will render the duet from "Rigoletto."

The club itself will sing several selections under the direction of their leader, Miss Virginia Los Kamp. They have been organized a year and a half and the club has steadily grown in size and interest. The members this season are: Elizabeth Bishop, Eva F. Bouton, Mildred Brower, Ella Carson, Jessie Cowley, Ruth Dana, Fan H. Delemater, Dorothy H. Dick, Marguerite Dougherty, Maude E. Dudley, Thelma Durr, Hazel Dutton, Mae R. Eckert, Frieda Ehnes, Beatrice Elias, M. Jean Estey, Anna C. Fallon, Frances S. Flanagan, Zella Follette, Mildred Ford, Bess Gill, Dorothy Gill, Marjorie N. Greene, Jeannette Grimes, Helen C. Haubenbeck, Naomi Herd, Edith B. Houck, Emily D. B. Hoydratt, Jane M. Hutton, Lu Elmer H. Jackson, Marion C. Jones, Ethel T. Kline, Laura Kolts, Emily Krieger, Viola McDonough, Bertha Magee, Pearl MacConvey, Pearl Markle, Mathilda Martin, Dorothy Mead, Gertrude Messenger, Mildred Messenger, Gracia P. Millard, Jeanette K. Mills, Katharine K. Monroe, Mary Moran, Lena D. Newkirk, Treasa Nichols, Charlotte T. Oliver, Emma Palen, Hilda Parker, Hilda Port, Gladys D. Port, Irene Rodman, Alice B. City Home Rule Proves Success

But New Local Laws or Changes in Existing Laws Should First Be Justified, Hackett Tells State Conference of Mayors.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Syracuse, June 2.—The first year of City Home Rule in New York state has been an unqualified success, declared Mayor William S. Hackett of Albany at the opening session of the Sixteenth Annual Meeting of the Cities and first class villages here this morning. In his annual address as President of the State Conference, Mayor Hackett summarized as follows the operation of the new Home Rule Law:

"During the first year of Home Rule in this state, more than one-half of the cities have entered this new field of municipal activity, the new powers conferred upon them have been exercised and the plan of procedure prescribed in the Enabling Act have been put into quite general practice. The Legislature has neither curtailed Home Rule powers by general law nor has it under the camouflage of an emergency, foisted upon any city any special law."

"It is a most significant fact that although 146 laws have been passed by thirty-eight cities, only one test case has resulted, and that was expected when the bus bills were introduced into the New York city municipal assembly. The cities have applied the principle of Home Rule with great care. Nothing has been done by them under Home Rule to justify the fears of the calamity howlers who predicted dire results if the constitutional amendment were approved; on the contrary, the same policy, which the cities have pursued has dispelled the doubts of many and done much to establish public confidence not only in municipal government generally but also in the ability of the cities to manage their local affairs."

"The fact that our powers remain intact after a session of the legislature during which no attempt was made to curtail them can be interpreted in only one way—that the cities under the first year of Home Rule have justified the confidence which the voters imposed in them when they approved the constitutional amendment. We should continue this sound policy of exercising Home Rule powers. No new local laws or changes in existing laws should be proposed until we are certain of the power to do so, and can justify the proposal as essential to efficient city management."

Commenting on the work of the conference in behalf of village government, President Hackett said: "Although we have been interested in village government for many months, we have already under way two very important and constructive projects which, when completed, should increase efficiency in the management of village affairs. We expect that the study of the village law by the State Legislature will result in simplification and clarification of the statutes and an enlargement of the powers of villages so that they can do many necessary things which they now lack authority to do and can provide better governmental machinery than the law now permits."

"The experience of our cities, particularly the smaller ones, with a uniform budget and accounting system, leaves no doubt about the benefits that villages will receive when they adopt the plan which State Comptroller Vincent Murphy is now

Governor Smith Ill in New York

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 2.—Governor Smith remained in bed again today in the Hotel Biltmore undergoing treatment for a sore throat. His secretary said the governor was "slightly improved."

The governor's condition has caused the postponement of the conference scheduled to consider plans for ratification of the polls for a $100,000,000 bond issue to be expended for permanent improvements over a period of ten years.

Get 61 Members In Two Hours

Many Prospective Members Also Lined Up in First Drive of Chamber of Commerce Expansion Campaign.

The Expansion Campaign of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce started with a rush this morning when all of the teams were represented at 8:30 at the Chamber of Commerce. The full number of assignments for the first day's work were made and after a few preliminary instructions the teams went out and reassembled at the Y. M. C. A. where luncheon was held and reports made. The result of the morning's work showed that 61 memberships had been rolled up in approximately two hours' time which was pointed out by President Lasher that through the efforts put forth this morning the Chamber's revenue has been increased $1,500 annually.

Aside from their actual reports the team leaders said that they have lined up many prospective members. Great enthusiasm prevailed at the day's report luncheon, the general feeling being that the entire army of workers will be able to do much better tomorrow after their first day's experience.

All team captains were asked to round up their full committees and be on the job at 9:30 Wednesday morning.

The report by team captains are as follows:

A. J. Burns, chairman, 9.
Roy Sutcliffe, chairman, 4.
Lewis Brown, chairman, 4.

It was arranged at the conclusion of today's luncheon among the directors of the Chamber to meet at 9:00 o'clock tomorrow morning for the funeral services of their fellow director, William Dugan, after which they will join their teams in the campaign.

EGGS FAIL TO HIT GENERAL OWEN O'DUFFY

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 2.—General Owen O'Duffy, chief commissioner of the Irish Civil Guard, still had a spotless uniform today in spite of having run a gauntlet of bad eggs thrown at his party while reviewing the 165th Infantry, formerly known as the "Fighting 69th." The missiles, alleged to have been thrown by a delegation from the Clan-na-Gael, as a protest against the Irish Free State, did not hit anyone in General O'Duffy's party. The general met the barrage with smiles.

One hundred plain clothes men and a squad of M. P.'s quickly routed those responsible for the disturbance.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. Peter Frear Emerick died Sunday at her home in West Camp. She is survived by her husband and three children.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary Giff will be held from her late home on Tilden street, Port Ewen, Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock and at 10 o'clock at the Church of the Presentation where a requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of her soul.

Harvey Wheeler died today in this city. He was a son of Mary J. Morse of Maple Hill. Funeral from his late residence at Maple Hill on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock and from the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, with interment in Bloomingdale cemetery.

The funeral of William Dugan will be held from his late residence, 140 Wall street, Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock and at 10 o'clock at the Church of the Presentation where a requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of his soul.

Ida May Hollenbeck, wife of George W. Palmer, widely known hotel man, died at their home in New Paltz on Monday evening following a brief illness of pneumonia. Besides her husband she is survived by two brothers, Jacob and William Hollenbeck, both of Catskill. She was an active member of the Episcopal Church at New Paltz and was a woman who had a host of friends. Her husband for many years has been prominently identified with the hotel business in Ulster county. At one time he was the proprietor of the old Mansion House at Broadway and Strand, the Palmer House at Broadway and Decker street, now branch bank of the Kingston Trust Company, the Kingston Hotel on Crown street and of late years the Palmer House at New Paltz, formerly the Tammany House, which he recently sold. His wife was also prominently identified with her husband in the hotel business and was a woman whose Christian disposition and kindly personality endeared her to all with whom she came in contact. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

American Forces Land at Shanghai

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Shanghai, June 2.—American marines and bluejackets and Italian marines took over the task of bringing peace to Shanghai this afternoon. Advice from the diplomatic body at Peking authorized the landing of 2,000 foreign marines if necessary. Two hundred American fighters from the destroyers here and the same number of Italian marines from the S. S. Libya immediately were put ashore and placed on patrol.

They were assigned to the Hong Kew district where many Japanese have been assaulted since the first flare up of Chinese as a result of labor troubles in the Japanese cotton spinning plants.

Under the guard of 500 American and British volunteers and with machine guns pointing a menacing warning from the foreign settlement this afternoon with a view to considering amendments to the land laws. Their proposals have been bitterly opposed by the Chinese and the meeting, it was feared, would incite new outbreaks.

The meeting, however adjourned for lack of a quorum after passing a vote of confidence in the municipal council.

Special Session Next Monday

Albany House Remains That Governor Smith Will Summon Legislature to Act on State Park Appropriation Bill.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, June 2.—Governor Smith is planning to call the legislature into extraordinary session next Monday night to pass a new $6,000,000 state park appropriation bill, according to reports which reached the capital today.

It was declared the special session, if called by the governor, would not last more than two or three days. Speaker McGinley of the Assembly, who was at the capital today, said he had heard reports that the governor was planning to issue a special call to the legislature for next Monday night.

The governor conferred last week with the Republican and Democratic leaders of the legislature and representatives of the state park commissions on the proposed new park measure. Following the conference, the Republican leaders announced they could not take the responsibility of promising to put through a new appropriation bill. It was later learned that the park representatives returned to their homes with the intention of seeing how many Republican legislators they could rally to the governor's proposal.

The Republicans passed a bill at the last session of the legislature which would have appropriated $6,000,000 of the $15,000,000 park bond issue. The governor vetoed the measure after charging the Republican leaders with attempting to inject politics into the state park program.

Free Range for Poultry

Poultry should not be allowed free range until they are about six weeks of age, after which time there is little danger from ordinary diseases. Before that time they should be in closed in a pen about 15 inches high. They will need special care during storms and should not be allowed to go through the grass while the dew is heavy. Both hens and pullets should be vaccinated frequently for lice, and if they are found they should be dusted twice a week.

ROUTING

WHITE DIARRHEA IS CAUSED BY A GERM

White diarrhea in chickens, a very infectious disease which may be transmitted from chick to chick by contact, is caused by a germ which multiplies rapidly in the body of the chick, causing a severe diarrhea that proves fatal in a large majority of the infected flocks. It has been definitely proved that hens which appear healthy may carry in their organs of reproduction the germ which causes this disease and which manifests itself in the young chicks within two or three days after hatching. Healthy chicks in the same incubators or brooders may become infected by contact, or by eating food or drinking from vessels that have become contaminated with the droppings of these sick chicks.

White diarrhea usually develops quickly, causing a heavy loss in chicks that are a few days to a week or more of age. The chicks, middle together, appear sleepy or stupid, and have no appetite. The droppings are white in color and this causes a condition called "pasted up behind." The chicks die within a few hours or days after the disease is noticed.

All sick chicks should be killed and along with all litter, refuse, and feed that is found in the brooder house, burned. All utensils used in and about the brooder house and the house itself, should be thoroughly cleaned, scalded with boiling water, and disinfected. Only healthy chicks should be put in the disinfected brooder house. It is best if possible to move them to entirely new quarters.

No satisfactory medical treatment for infected chicks has been found. The disease may be prevented by hatching eggs from disease-free flocks. Certain drugs used in the drinking water aid in preventing the spread of disease in chicks. Bichloride of mercury in the proportion of 20 grains to every gallon of water is recommended. Sour milk or buttermilk should form a good part of the ration. To save a flock when the infection has once started requires constant care and untiring efforts.

Direct Sunshine Is Fine Food for Young Chicks

Feed your chicks sunshine if you want them to grow rapidly and strong. Scientists say that leg-weakness in chicks reared indoors is caused, not by the wrong feed, but by the lack of direct sunshine which enables them to use their food in building a good, strong skeleton. And by direct sunshine they mean sunshine that has not lost most of its effect by being sifted through glass or cloth. Leg-weakness is at the seat of many chick troubles, preventing sufficient exercise and making it difficult for the chicks to secure their feed.

It is therefore important that the chicks be allowed outdoors on the sunny days as early as possible. A little while each day is better than not at all. A small yard can be provided so as to simplify getting them back into the house when desired. If, because of cold weather, the chicks cannot be outdoors, the windows should be opened at the bottom so as to allow the entrance of the sun's rays without interference.

Green stuff such as clover seeds that have been grown in the sunshine, yolks of egg laid by hens that have been on range, and crude cod liver oil, fed at about 1 to 2 per cent of the ration, will help to make up for the lack of sunshine, but most poultry keepers will prefer to use sunshine whenever possible—Corn Cakes, Extension Poultry Specialist, University of Minnesota.

Seed Poultry Yards for Prevention of Diseases

Success with chicks depends largely upon the condition of their runs. The most effective prevention and control of diseases and parasites transmitted through the soil, is to provide a heavy growth of vegetation which will clean up the soil. This applies particularly to coccidiosis, intestinal worms, and tuberculosis.

Alfalfa, blue grass, and timothy or vetch and rye are very satisfactory seed mixtures for brooder runs and poultry yards. A generous application of lime will aid in the growth of vegetation and cleaning the soil. Seeding the yards in this way not only overcomes the disease contamination of the soil, but provides an abundance of green feed in the yards which is so essential for the chicks in the spring.

The brooder houses should be moved so the ground occupied by chicks this year can be seeded now. They should be placed on new ground each spring and the following year they may be returned to the ground on which they now stand.

The Difference

Another thing that stands in the way of the perfect equality of the sexes is that when a man gives a new hat to his wife, she gets one just exactly like the old one—this same.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, June 2.—Stocks settled down to inactive and desultory trading today. There were few movements of any importance.

Outside traders were apathetic. Profit taking in industrial and specialty stocks developed and at all times a good supply of stocks was for sale at concessions from the previous closing level.

The most important financial developments of the day occurred in the bond market, where the new Argentine $45,000,000 loan was quickly disposed of. The German 7 per cent established a new high for all time. The new Norwegian 4's brought out on Monday sold above the issue price.

Trading fell off after the noon hour and transactions in the first three hours were only $23,100 shares. Public utility stocks were entirely submerged. The independent steel and copper stocks disappeared almost entirely from the active list.

Cotton lost about $2 a bale following the publication of the government report showing crop condition on May 23 at 76.6 per cent of normal, the highest since 1915.

Fraternity Organizations.
Wednesday evening, May 27, the Pythian Sisters of A. W. Reynolds Temple entertained the district deputy, Sister Ida Wilson of Ontario Temple, Tannersville, N. Y., at which time a delegation from A. W. Reynolds Temple, Ellenville, Queens Temple, Pine Bush, Ideal Temple, Saugerties, Hope Temple, Port Ewen, were present. The hall was decorated with the Pythian colors, also with flowers which were so kindly given by Mr. Burgevin. Past District Deputy Rilla Locke presented her successor D. D. P. C. Iva Wilson of Ontario Temple with an electric bouquet of roses in behalf of the Pythian Sisters. A very pleasing program was rendered. Chancellor Commander Dean Wanda of Franklin Lodge sang several selections. They were next entertained by the well known sleight of hand performer Fred Van Deusen, also a recitation entitled "The Old Clock on the Stair" by Alice Palmer, niece of the Executive Chief Alice Schick. Mrs. Parcell's orchestra which consisted of piano, violin, trap drum and xylophone played the march for supper after which they played several selections. John Locke gave a very helpful and touching talk on Pythianism. Delicious refreshments were served by the well known chef Jasper Egan and his assistants. The orchestra also played for the dancing in the evening which all enjoyed after which they left at a late hour for their homes. They all expected to meet again at Tannersville on June 2 at the Pythian convention.

Giants Prove a Versatile Team

Places of Injured Players Occupied By Shifting Line-up With The Same Satisfactory Results—McGraw's Presence Makes No Difference.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, June 2.—It was the common impression during recent years that deep thinking by John McGraw had jockeyed the New York Giants into their succession of pennants but a glance at the standing of the clubs this morning, augmented by the fact that McGraw has been hoarse de shoulder blades for many weeks, rather confutes this theory. Confute is a five dollar word, meaning to leave all wet.

The Giants have won twenty-eight out of forty ball games played to date and most of them have been conducted without the benefit of McGraw's presence on the bench. While he was enjoying extremely bad health, the club was in the hands of Hughie Jennings, who regards deep thinking as a pastime for night watchmen. Mr. Jennings favors deep hitting against the center field fence.

McGraw probably telephoned general instructions to Jennings each morning, including his choice of pitcher. But what of the idea that McGraw had to dictate each move of each man on the ball club? He couldn't telephone instructions to a man at the plate, facing a count of two and one.

The most plausible answer is that McGraw doesn't make the Giants today any more than the Giants make McGraw. In addition to natural speed and power, they happen to be the most versatile lot within the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

Take a look at their present line up. It gives a few highly illuminating facts on the situation. "Could the old Cubs have lost Steinfield, Johnny Evers and Frank Chance and continue to win. It is doubtful. Could the old Athletics have spared Baker, Collins and McInnes. The answer is yes, provided Galli Curren can spare her windpipe."

Yet that is something of the position now occupied by the Giants. They have lost Frisch, Kelly and Groh from the infield, leaving only Jackson to carry on for the old guard. First, Groh was injured and Lindstrom, the adolescent star, replaced him to the satisfaction of all concerned. Frisch followed Groh to the side lines; whereupon Kelly moved over from first base to second and Terry stepped into the breach. All remained serene.

Kelly himself, was the next casualty. His temporary passing brought in Young from right field and the Giants having a plethora of outfielders, no one suffered. It is conceivable that the club might lose another good man, Jackson alone barred, and play better than 500. They are so good that several of their best hitters are in a slump and they don't seem to feel the difference.

Ossining Beat The All Stars

Sunday at Ossining the Kingston All Stars were defeated 4-2 in a very exciting game before a crowd of about 3,500 fans. Jim Volker on the mound for the locals allowed but five hits, but wildness on his part together with an error by Gaddis gave them two in the first.

Swanson, the Ossining twirler, was touched up for nine safeties, but was effective in the pinches.

Ossining scored in the first when Volker walked Acker and Mauke. Johnston sacrificed sending Acker and Mauke to second and third. Rowe next up was walked. Duschau slammed the next ball to Gaddis who dropped it letting two in.

The local club scored two in the third when Gaddis and Volker both singled. Lynch next up, banged a double to center scoring both runners.

Ossining scored one more in their half of the third when a single and a triple by Johnston gave them another. In the sixth they got their last tally.

The All Stars made a very good showing Sunday and they have been asked to return in July at a better franchise. The All Stars also have chances for several more bookings in that season. Next Sunday Ossining plays Stamford, Conn., and next the New Jersey Professionals, who played here.

The box score:

College Oarsmen Favor Shells Made by Pocock

Many racing shells used by universities in the United States have been designed and constructed by George Pocock of Seattle. Pocock's father and grandfather were shell builders. His grandfather built the first racing shell in Great Britain. His father, R. G. Pocock, was rowing manager of Eaton, England, for 14 years. He retired for a time, but is again building shells in England.

So well has George Pocock built shells that seven American universities have given him orders for boats. George Pocock and his brother came to America in 1910 and settled in Vancouver, B. C. After two years they came to Seattle.

"Shells have changed," remarked George Pocock. "I have seen all the changes, and have been responsible for many."

Eleanor Garatti Injured

Miss Eleanor Garatti, national women's swimming champion at fifty yards, will probably be unable to go East this summer to compete in eastern meets. The seventeen-year-old coast star will not be able to enter the water again for at least two months, as the result of a torn ligament suffered in practice. Miss Garatti, while practicing, twisted her knee in some manner.

Over-Long Sentence

Edgar A. Bancroft, the famous Chicago lawyer who has been appointed ambassador to Japan, said at a Blackstone luncheon:

"A good diplomat can coach the truth, even the most unpleasant truth, in diplomatic language. He is like the young beauty."

"I told Golem Golde," said the young beauty, "that, despite his great wealth, he was too old for me, and so I wouldn't marry him."

"What?" said her mother. "You told him to his face he was too old? My, but he must have been mad."

"Oh, no," said the young beauty, "he wasn't mad. You see, I used diplomatic language. He said he'd love and cherish me till death, and I told him he was too young."

Smith, Jones and Hagen Favorites

In National Open Golf Championship Which Begins Wednesday—Cream of American Golf Talent Will Tee Off.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Worcester, Mass., June 1.—Professional chance takers usually fight shy of the national open golf championship. It's too uncertain, they say. Too many slips between the putter and the cup.

Let today, 24 hours before the cream of American golf talent, pro and amateur tee off in the twenty-fifth open, a lot of wise money is being wagered that the winner of the gruelling 72 hole grind will be one of three men—Mac Donald Smith, Bobby Jones or Walter Hagen.

This is no disparagement of the other top notch golfers here from all sections of the country. It simply means that the chance takers, following the form chart, do not believe this trio can be headed.

All the golfers came to Worcester talking about Mac Donald Smith's two miraculous performances at Lido, when he went around in a pair of 70's while veteran tournament golfers like Freddie McLeod were high in the 80's.

Today they were talking about Bobby Jones, the Atlanta amateur, whose performance of 66 yesterday, came about as near being perfect golf as is given to man to see. Paired with Hagen against Joe Kirkwood and Tommy Armour, the Atlanta youth went out in 33 and back in 33. He had only one of five in his card, and he elicited off five birdies, with no hole above par.

Jones' score, tied the course record held by Willie Ogg, the club pro.

Hagen, of course, is always dangerous. Other pros speak of his as "a money golfer."

The experts here expect to see this trio come down the stretch toward the title with a stroke or so separating them.

Few golfers here give Cyril Walker, the present open champion, a look in to repeat.

Today was devoted to the so-called east-west matches and practice rounds. The pairings included: Cyril Walker and Walter Hagen vs. Bobby Jones and Francis Ouert. Mac Donald Smith and Gene Sarazen vs. Jim Barnes and Jack Hutchinson. Johnny Farrell and Leo Diegel vs. Willie Hunter and Clarence Hackney.

Willie Mac Farland and Joe Kirkwood vs. Larry Nabholz and Emmett French.
